HUN BOMBS WRECK U. S. AMBULANCES

WOUNDED ATTACKED FROM AIR

Hun Frightfulness Also Marks Red Cross Hospitals as Targets

By BERT FORD.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, May 31.—Another evidence of the inhumanity of the German airmen in bombing Red Cross hospitals and wounded back of the American lines was provided yesterday when three American ambulances, each carrying wounded men, were wrecked by a bomb dropped by a Hun flier.

Sergeant Ethan Welles of San Francisco, Cal., gives the following graphic description of the attack on ambulances bearing our wounded men.

"Three ambulances were in our train coming from the front and the boches bombed us and the villages along the entire route.

NO MERCY FOR WOUNDED.

"I was on the front seat of the first ambulance with Private Robert A. Bowman of Galveston, Tex., driving. We had two wounded American soldiers on litters in our car.

"We had reached the outer yard of the hospital where, on turning a corner, we heard the whirr of the boche machine overhead. It sounded like a saw mill. There was a terrific report, followed by a blinding flash. I woke up back of the wreckage, unhurt.

"The funniest part of it was that Chauffeur Bowman and both occupants of the car escaped injury, although the ambulance was totally wrecked. We can't account for our luck.

"Corporal Aubrey C. Jones of Dallas Tex., with Private Guy W. Showers of Harrisburg, Pa., had two American wounded on stretchers. One of the patients was blown into a little grocery store across the road, where

Must Open the Road to France, Says Daniels

By International News Service.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 31.—"Our business is to open the road to France," said Secretary Daniels in an address here, referring to the work of the navy in convoying transports and combatting the U-boats.

"Our first business," he said, "is to hunt the submarines. We have hunted them and will hunt them until they dare not appear as assassins of men and women.

"We have carried many thousands of soldiers. In a few weeks the number will reach a million and in a few months it will reach two millions, and, if needed, 10,000,000 to win the war."

GOVERNMENT ENTERS ON BIGGEST MOVING JOB

Washington, May 31.—The biggest moving job ever undertaken by the government is in progress today. It consists of moving from Washington to Philadelphia, a distance of 140 miles, all of the office furniture of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and the household belongings of 3,000 employes. Practically all of the hauling will be done by motor trucks. When the first caravan of thirty fifteen army trucks hit the road from Washington a similar number of empties started from Philadelphia, so that, while half the fleet is unloading at one end, the rest will be loading at the other.

AUTOIST HELD IN $1,000 FOR KILLING OF CHILD

Francis P. J. Mahoney, who drives a motor truck for Louis Merry & Co., bakers, was held in $1,000 today for the Grand Jury when he appeared in the Municipal court charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Charles Bavilacqua, a boy nine years old, of No. 149 Salem street, on May 4. The boy was in the middle of the street, when the truck skidded and the radiator pinned him against the wall of the Paul Revere School. Mahoney said the steering gear went wrong, and automobile men appeared to corroborate his statement.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE SEEKING LOST PRESTIGE

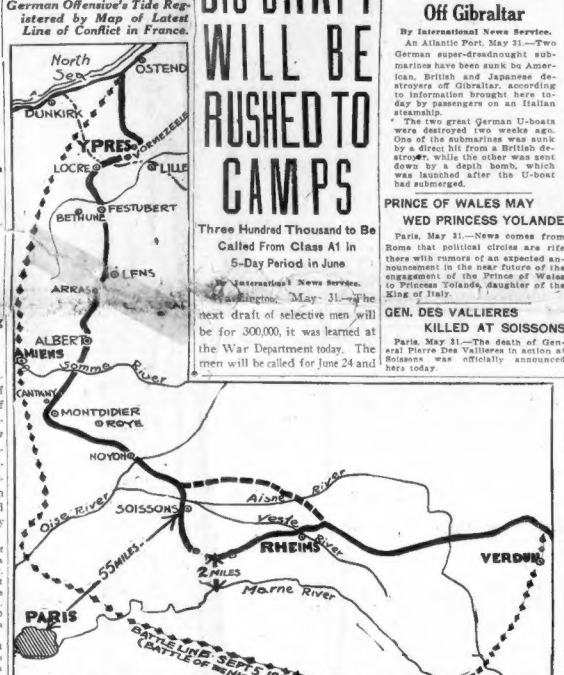

Basle, May 31.—The German Crown Prince is striving desperately to win back his popularity, which he lost at Verdun. German Offensive's Tide Registered by Map of Latest Line of Conflict in France.

This map, drawn this afternoon, up to date with the latest news from the French battlefront, striking compares the situation May 31, 1918, and in September of 1914, when General Joffre rolled back the Teuton invaders sweeping tow ard Paris after they had already crossed the Marne River. The dotted line represents the Huns' farthest penetration in the 1914 avalanche.

BIG DRAFT WILL BE RUSHED TO CAMPS

Three Hundred Thousand to Be Called From Class A1 in 5-Day Period in June

By International News Service.

Washington, May 31.—The next draft of selective men will be for 300,000, it was learned at the War Department today. The men will be called for June 24 and the movement to the camps will last five days.

This is the largest number of men called to the colors at one time since the original draft of 687,000 last year.

The 300,000 called out June 24 will all be trained for fighting. Calls for specialists will be made separately. It is believed that all of the 300,000 will be taken from class 1-A.

Thousands Gather at South Station to Give Draftees a Farewell

Nearly 1000 drafted men from eastern Massachusetts left today for Fort Slocum, New York, from which point they will be distributed to various training camps. Most of the men entrained at the South station, but several from Fall River and vicinity were picked up at Mansfield and another carload was added at Providence.

There were two trains, one of eleven cars and the other of five. The first carried men from points north of Boston, the second those from the southern part of the State and from Cambridge. The longer train left five

2 Super-Dreadnought Submarines Sunk Off Gibraltar

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, May 31.—Two German super-dreadnought submarines have been sunk by American, British and Japanese destroyers off Gibraltar, according to information brought here today by passengers on an Italian steamship.

The two great German U-boats were destroyed two weeks ago. One of the submarines was sunk by a direct hit from a British destroyer, while the other was sent down by a depth bomb, which was launched after the U-boat had submerged.

London, May 31. — Fifty thousand miners in Monmouthshire, Wales, have struck. The cause of the strike is an alleged infraction of the union rules by the employers.

FRENCH RETAKE TOWN NORTH OF RHEIMS

Paris, May 31.—The Germans today have extended the battle zone westward from the region of Soissons to the river Oise, where it now is definitely linked with the Picardy line, according to information contained in the official report issued by the French War Office this afternoon.

This extension of the front of attack is directed against the great bulge the French had been able to maintain in the Oise Valley, on the eastern end of the Picardy front, between Noyon and Coucy-le-chateau. The latest assault of the Germans is intended, it is believed, to remove this menace against their right flank around and below Soissons.

Unofficial reports received from the southern edge of the battle front, south of the Aisne, today state that the Germans have continued to push forward in spite of the vigorous resistance offered by the French. They are now only two miles north of the river Marne on their farthest south, where they have touched the village of LeCharmel. The advance east and west of LeCharmel has been also extensive, it is stated.

It is stated today that the Crown Prince started his drive on the Aisne front with 40 divisions, about 560,000 men, and was met by 10 allied divisions.

By ERNEST P. ORR,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 31.—The German armies standing on the centre have been able to make a slight advance north of the Marne river, today's War Office communique states.

Both wings are being firmly held by the Allies.

GERMANS MAKE SLIGHT GAIN AT CENTRE; EXTEND BATTLE FRONT

CROWN PRINCE'S ARMIES NOW REPORTED TO BE WITHIN TWO MILES OF MARNE

The text of the official communique follows:

"The Germans have extended their efforts on the right wing of the battle front as far as the Oise river.

"North of Berlincourt and Epagny the French withdrew while maintaining rear guard actions.

"In the Soissons sector and south of the place the French maintained all of their positions, breaking up German attacks. In the western outskirts of Soissons and on the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road the French hold their positions.

"On the centre the Germans were able to make a slight advance in the district north of the Marne river.

"By a strong counter thrust we have recaptured Thillois from the Germans.

"North and northeast of Rheims all German attacks broke down before our resistance. (Epagny and Berlincourt both lie northwest of Soissons.)

Aisne-Marne Battle Front Now Linked With the Theatre in Picardy

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

While pressing forward for a slight distance on the centre, the Germans have extended their operations on the Aisne-Marne battlefield to the northwest of Soissons, attacking French positions between Coucy-le-Chateau and the Oise River.

They are now about two miles from the Marne, the scene of their decisive defeat in September of 1914 when Paris was saved from Von Kluck's hordes.

There has been no slackening in the German pressure and violent assaults against the Anglo-French positions continue all along the line, on both flanks of the salient and in the centre.

EXTEND THE FRONT.

By striking out northwest of Soissons, the Germans have now extended the battle front until it is practically linked with the Picardy theatre of fighting. This means that the double battle line is now nearly 100 miles long, although there have been no important operations upon the Picardy plains for more than a month.

General Foch has begun to strike back at the Germans with vigorous counter blows, and the French have already captured Thillois, three miles northwest of Rheims.

The Germans are still trying to force the evacuation of Rheims, and claim to have reached a point south of Fere-en-Tardenois, approximately twenty Ileam southwest of the city.

AFTER RAIL TO PARIS.

As the battle line stands, the Germans are only about three miles from Oulchy Chateau, which French military critics regard as one of their chief local objectives, the main objective being the Paris-Chalons railway.

The mighty battle has now become a struggle between reserve armies, according to English war critics. It is estimated that the Germans have already thrown nearly 500,000 men into the engagement and how many more they hold in reserve cannot be estimated, owing to the secrecy of the German troops movements under cover of darkness.

The struggle between the Aisne and the Marne has reached its fifth day, with no lessening in its violence. While the Teutonic hosts have been slowed up, they have made slight gains, and it is estimated that their advance from last Monday morning has now reached nearly twenty-two miles.

While maintaining strong pressure on the centre, Hindenburg has been making frantic efforts to widen the flanks of the German salient, and no doubt it is part of his plan to try to outflank the French defending Rheims and the French army standing at the extreme southeastern end of the Picardy front.

World interests still remains centred upon the field of combat between Rheims and Soissons to the exclusion of all other arenas of action. This not only arises from the magnitude of the action between the Aisne and the Marne and the momentous results which impend, but from the fact that activities on the Picardy and Flanders battle fields have died down to a minimum. Only raiding operations have taken place in Flanders, while artillery has played the chief role on the Picardy front during the past twenty-four hours.

This was the seventy-second day of the German grand offensive.

British Capture a German Position Southeast of Arras

By International News Service

London, May 31. — British troops rushed a German post southeast of Arras last night, the British War Office reported today. There was heavy artillery firing at Villers-Bretonneux, Albert and Festubert.

The text of the British War Office statement follows:

"We rushed a German post southeast of Arras during the night and captured a few prisoners. A few prisoners and a machine gun were captured by us in patrol encounters northeast of Ypres. The enemy raided one of our posts northeast of Robecq. A few of our troops are missing. There was artillery firing in the Villers-Bretonneux and Albert sectors and between Festubert and the Clarence River."

London Military Critic Calls on Allies to Take Offensive

By International News Service.

London, May 31.—The Daily Chronicle today said that the abandonment of Rheims seemed inevitable now, and that it was not improbable that it already has been carried out. The Chronicle also declared that a big attack on the British front now would occasion no surprise.

"The battle is now one of reserves," the Daily News stated in an editorial. "Gen. Foch should be able to arrest the advance, as the allies' task is now to hold on until the ultimate reserves of America's inexhaustible forces make victory certain."

The Daily Telegraph military critic wants the allies to take the offensive.

"Only one form of action is worth discussion now," he says. "In order to snatch victory the allies must at any cost abandon the offensive and strike at the vital arteries connecting the German posts."

In its editorial columns the Daily Telegraph said:

"The peril was perhaps greater than in either of the two blows previously delivered, owing to the German superiority in strength, and the fact that many of the allies' troops recently engaged in hard fighting were again called upon. The heroic resistance is thus more remarkable."

The Soissons plateau was strongly fortified in 1914, and the allies are reaping the advantages of their foresight, the Times says.

YANKEE AIRMEN FIGHT SEVEN BATTLES

Shoot Down Two Hun Planes, Force Another to Descend, Lose One Machine

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 31.—Five of our pursuit planes, protecting a large squadron of British bombing machines returning from a raid over Germany this morning, fought seven battles, shooting down two German planes and forcing another down out of control.

We lost one plane and one pilot.

During the fighting one of our chasing machines fell in No Man's Land just in front of the German trenches. The pilot was ordered to walk into the German trenches which he did.

Lieutenant Eddie Rickenbacker of Columbus, O., former racing driver, is now an "ace." The American flyer shot down his fifth machine today and shortly afterwards he sent another to the earth and in doing so saved the life of Lieutenant James Meissner.

MEISSNER SCORES AGAIN.

Lieutenant Meissner engaged a German machine and while fighting it another German dove on him from above. The two machines crashed together and one of the wings of the American's machine was torn almost completely off. The German machine was seen to fall. Lieutenant Meissner, however, was still able to fly and he started slowly for the American lines.

A second German airman, seeing the American's crippled condition, dove for him. Just at this minute Lieutenant Rickenbacker, who had already shot down a German machine and chased off four others in an engagement, came into sight. He at once opened fire on the German, advancing for Meissner. The German drew away and later it was established that he had fallen.

Several more air battle followed without a decisive result. Then an American patrol of five machines sighted two Germans who fled for their own lines. The Americans split up and succeeded in getting on the tail of one of the Germans. After several hundred shots the Hun went tumbling to earth.

HONOR FOR MEISSNER.

The other German was later caught and he was chased to earth. [illegible] landed, his machine turned [illegible]. What happened to the pilot, who was also accompanied by an observer, could not be learned.

STIRRING SCENE AS DRAFTEES GO TO CAMPS

Thousands Gather at South Station to Give Bay State Boys a Rousing Sendoff

minutes earlier than the other, and both are routed via Providence.

Thousands of friends and relatives assembled at the station. There were many affecting scenes of parting, and likewise many expressions of supreme confidence on the part of the drafted men. Cheering and waving their hats as the trains moved out of the station, the drafted men departed on the first stage of their trip to the trenches of France.

DRUM CORPS IN THE LEAD.

The groups from each district marched into the station, some headed by drum corps and some accompanied by the mayor or selectmen of their municipality.

Three Boston AMERICAN men were among those who left today—Harry A. Benwell, of the editorial department, who had charge of the seven drafted men from Arlington and Winchester; H. Cardenio King, son of the late Cardenio F. King, who was a member of the group from Winthrop, and A. Edward Headberg, who was in the Somerville group.

Conductors George E. Barton and W. H. Barrett, veterans in the New Haven's service, were in charge of the trains and did everything in their power to make the drafted men comfortable on the trip to New York. On the entraining platform, the Women's War Canteen Service distributed coffee, sandwiches, gum, cigarettes, magazines and other comforts.

Lunches were also served at Providence and New London. When the last group of drafted men went to Fort Slocum they were given so much lunch that they left a large part of it absolutely untouched, and a good-sized collection of edibles was taken up when the train reached its destination.

Two Boston divisions and an East Boston group of drafted men came to the station, but were turned back and will entrain Monday.

Sergeant Burgess was in charge of the detail of fifty patrolmen assigned to keep the way to the train open for the drafted men. So dense was the crowd that at times it was hard to keep the road clear.

TOWNS AND CITIES IN LINE.

The towns and cities represented in today's contingents were: Arlington, with 6 men; Winchester, 1; Lexington, (Belmont [illegible]) Watertown, 24; Reading [illegible] Park and Roslindale [illegible] Newburyport and Newbury [illegible] Wollaston [illegible] 7, who were accompanied [illegible] Mayor Stoddard to the train; Dudley, 21; Woburn, 35; [illegible] bridge, 16; Haverhill, 60; Waltham, 21; Lynn and Swampscott, 92; Stoneham, 16; Franklin, 7; Plymouth, 18; Rockland, Abington, Whitman, Hingham and Hull, 12; Medford, 15; Winthrop, 7; Revere, 22, and Salem, 53. Brockton, Lawrence, Fall River and Quincy were also represented by large delegations.

The Revere and Winthrop men were escorted by eight members of St. John's Cadet fife and drum corps, and by Chairman T. J. Malaney of the Winthrop Board of Selectmen. Mayor Creamer addressed the Lynn men before their departure from that city and the Lynn Red Cross gave each man a sweater. Twenty Grand Army men led the drafted men to the Lynn station, where they were given an ovation by Boy Scouts and school children.

Mayor Sullivan and the City Council of Salem went to the Salem station with the men from that city, each of whom was given a military kit. Among the Medford men were Lieutenant Howard M. Woodbridge of the fire department and George F. ("Babe") Twombley, the former National League baseball player. He was with the Braves and later with Cincinnati.

The Newton quota, 88 in all, which is the largest yet called from that city, was assembled today, but the order to go to Fort Slocum was countermanded and the men will not go until Monday.

Sergeant Major English Former Salem Boy, Slain Fighting With British

A former Salem boy, Sergeant Major Bernard F. English, M. M. thirty-four, of the British Expeditionary Force, was killed in action in France, May 30, according to advices received in that city today. He was the son of the late Bernard F. and Margaret (Boylan) English, and was formerly employed at the Danvers State Hospital. He leaves one sister in Salem, Miss Elizabeth L. English of No. 29 Daniel street.

ANNA HELD IS MAKING GOOD FIGHT FOR LIFE

New York, May 31.—The consulting physicians in charge of Anna Held were greatly pleased today at the patient's wonderful tenacity in holding on to the improvement in her condition which she gained yesterday. They announced her condition unchanged after spending a restful night. However, they do not wish to spread any further hopes for her recovery than they have already published. No other blood transfusion operation is contemplated at the present time, they say.

ARLINGTON BUILDER IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

Israel P. Rice, of Lake Hill avenue, Arlington, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the District Court today. Rice, who is a builder, placed his liabilities at $92,924.64 and his assets at $57,808. His secured claims are $87,628.67 and his unsecured claims, $3,277.93.

Lieut. Ream, Who Paid $210,000 Alimony, to Wed Again

Thompson, Ct., May 31.—Lieutenant Louis Marshal Ream of the United States naval aviation service, who was ordered last Winter to pay $210,000 alimony to his first wife, Eleanor Pendleton Ream, the actress, will be married here tomorrow to Miss Mary S. Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Weaver of Putnam Heights. They will live at Chevy Chase, Md.

Lieutenant Ream, son of the late Norman B. Ream, capitalist and steel manufacturer, married Eleanor Pendleton in 1911, lived with her five days, then left her. The Reams secured an annulment of the marriage, but the annulment order was later vacated, leaving the actress still the wife of young Ream. Then, having demonstrated her legal status as Ream's wife, Eleanor Pendleton Ream secured a divorce and alimony. Two weeks after the divorce and alimony decree Ream's engagement to Miss Weaver was announced.

Among the bridal attendants tomorrow will be Miss Harriett McGuire of West Newton, Mass., as a bridesmaid, and Lieutenant Howard Luther of Attleboro, Mass., as an usher.

BOMB WOUNDED U. S. BOYS FROM AEROPLANES

Hun Flyer Makes Vicious Attack on Ambulances on Way to Hospital

the front of the building had been torn away by the force of the same explosion.

WOMAN AND CHILDREN KILLED.

"The other patient received but few additional injuries.

"The third ambulance was being driven by Roscoe Wiley of Madisonville, Tex., and Sergeant John Molder of Altoona, Pa. They had three wounded soldiers in their car, and all of them escaped injury, although the buildings across the street were totally wrecked.

"[They] pulled the patients out from beneath the wreckage, and carried [the]m to the hospital. A woman and two children were killed in a house across the street."

Chauffeur Wiley said: "It looked like the inside of hell to me. I thought I had been kicked by a mule."

The Germans are massing heavy bodies of troops opposite Cantigny, which was taken by the Americans. It is presumed the enemy is going to attempt the recapture of the village, even at heavy cost.

RAKED WITH HUN SHELLS.

The Picardy sector is being raked by thousands of Boche shells of every calibre ranging from "75's" up to high power explosives. Several thousand phosgene "sneezing gas" shells were poured upon the ridge salient so gallantly captured by the Americans. The Germans shelled villages on our rear while Boche airmen bombed a series of towns between the front and Paris.

The Germans have failed utterly to dislodge our troops from Cantigny where our line is getting stronger hourly.

German prisoners from the eighty second regiment of Bavarian reserves, which was defeated by our boys at Cantigny, told how they had fought on the Somme, forming part of the Prussian reserves in 1915.

They explained how they had been rushed to the Galician fronts for the big offensive against the Russians and were later relieved by landsturmers. Then they were hurried to special training camps for instruction preliminary to service on the western front. They arrived on the Picardy field in May, forming part of twelve divisions.

BUSY DIGGING TRENCHES.

Our men are converting the ruined village of Cantigny into a stronghold, digging trenches on the outskirts where only a narrow space separates the Americans from the Germans.

The Americans are continually driving at the German lines east of Cantigny with a withering machine gun fire, and the Boche is going to find a hot opposition awaiting him.

Every attack that the enemy has made so far on the new American position has been repulsed easily and with heavy losses to the attackers.

Several times when the Boches attacked in several waves of infantry the American artillerymen have cut off the Boches from their own trenches, inflicting heavy casualties.

FRIGHTFULNESS IN AIR.

Balked in their efforts to attack Paris, the Huns have extended their campaign of air frightfulness to nearly every town and hamlet between the American lines on the Picardy front and Paris.

On Wednesday night the Germans made their second raid against a large town in the rear of our lines, where they attempted to bomb nearly a score of hospitals filled with French and American wounded soldiers. A previous raid had been made on Tuesday night.

Washington War Experts Expect News That Pershings' Men Are in Thick of Fight

By International News Service.

Washington, May 31.—Army experts here today were concerned over reports that the Germans in their smashing drive toward the Marne claim to have captured large quantities of munitions, cannon and other war materials. Up to the present time there had been strong hopes entertained that despite the severity of the German attack the allied forces had succeeded in withdrawing their artillery.

It is accepted now, however, that this was not the case, there being no disposition to question the German claim, although there is as yet no confirmation from allied sources. However, it is expected that every effort will be made to replace this artillery at once. There is a good reserve supply both in France and England, and this will be rushed to the front while American factories will get busy replacing it and storing up additional reserves.

There was a growing belief in official circles today that the American forces in France would take a decided part in the present fighting.

There are many well trained units available behind the lines which can be brought into action, while the Picardy army very likely will remain where it is.

In Picardy there are more than 100,000 Americans, but they are a part of the Anglo-French reserves, held to frustrate any attempt on the part of the Germans to break through toward the Channel ports. They very likely will remain there, but it is expected that other American units south of the Marne either will be used as a part of the reserves now being sent in by General Foch in the Soissons-Rheim sector, or will be sent to other parts of the front to replace veteran French forces that will be used against the Germans. However, officials here generally believe that the Americans will be used in the present fight.

Announcement

The practice of calling upon telephone operators for information as to the time of day has grown to the point of interfering with the efficiency of telephone service.

For such information 100,000 calls are made daily in New England, the bulk of such calls coming naturally at times when it is most difficult to handle them.

Service efficiency now demands that the work of the operating force should be relieved of unnecessary burdens, and that all energies be directed toward the furnishing of effective telephone service, and to that alone.

Prompted by these considerations, the practice of giving information as to the time of day will be discontinued beginning June 3, 1918.

BAY STATE TROLLEY MEN ASK DEFINITE ACTION ON RELIEF BILL

SAY STATE OUGHT TO OPERATE ROAD

Tell of Low Wage Conditions in Protest Against Delay Sent to Governor

The following communication was sent by the representatives of the Bay State Street Railway men to Governor McCall, President Wells of the Senate, and Speaker Cox of the House, today.

"To the Great and General Court of Massachusetts:

"The situation of the bill to grant relief to and to establish public control of the Bay State Street Railway at the close of the Legislative session Wednesday indicates the possibility of an adjournment without the passage of the bill in any remedial form.

"This is most distressing and unjust to more than 250,000 people of Massachusetts, dependent upon wages paid by the Bay State Street Railway Company. As the representatives of the employes of the Bay State, we consider that the time is now appropriate to call your attention and the attention of the public to our situation.

WAGES OF THE MEN.

"Our conductors and motormen receive a little over $19 a week. This is lower than the present wages of the employes of the Boston Elevated Railway, whose line adjoins ours and the increase of whose wages is impending.

"Ours is a public service corporation like the railroads. Our motormen and conductors have a responsibility as great as the trainmen of the railroads; their duties are as difficult and probably more arduous, yet we are informed that the train conductors on a railroad receive from $36.60 a week and the brakemen receive $27.18 a week.

"Wages all over the country have gone up by leaps and bounds. Common, unskilled laborers in factories served by the cars we handle, receive now $25 to $30 a week, while the more skilled employments receive much more.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire—we do not begrudge these workingmen their good wages. They have been long enough coming into their own, but these conditions serve to make apparent the injustice of the situation in which the employees of the Bay State find themselves.

CITES RAILROAD INCREASES.

"Only this week the United States government, now operating the railroads, announced a raise of from twenty-two to twenty-five per cent. in the pay of their engineers and trainmen.

"As we have pointed out before, our employment is in the public service and by the terms of the pending bill, will be as wholly in the public service as the railroads.

"We have scrupulously avoided participating in any public discussion of legislation affecting the wages while there might be doubt as to the unmitigated public character of our employment' and the absolute public control of the railway.

"But now, by the terms of the pending bill, the State will assume entire control of the railway and will operate it as the National government now operates the railroads and as the State will, under the law just formed, soon proceed to operate the Boston Elevated. Under these circumstances, we do not understand why we should be treated so differently.

SAY RAISE IS DESERVED.

"The people of Massachusetts have never shown a disposition to be unfair to working men when there was an opportunity for public opinion to be clearly expressed.

"We do not ask for everything that any other similar class now or may hereafter receive, but we do believe that the public will hold us justified in expecting to receive an increase in wages when we are not now getting a fair living wage at a time when wages are everywhere so extraordinarily high.

"We are informed that this pending bill will take the Bay State out of the hands of a receiver and will tend to re-establish its credit and enable it to do justice by us at the same time that is serves the public. As to this, you probably will know better than we.

"We merely wish, very respectfully, to set forth our condition, and our hopes and expectations in the belief that the public will approve them.

Soldier's Initials on Instep Embarrass Fickle Maiden

By International News Service.

Oakland, Cal., May 31.—A pretty Oakland maiden who thought her romance with a soldier would be a life-long love affair had his initials tattooed across her instep. She is now in grave distress.

The bathing season is here. She has forgotten her first love in spite of the constant reminder and is now infatuated with a sailor whose initials unfortunately are different. Wardwell Martin, Oakland tattooist, has been appealed to in an effort to remove the tell-tale initials. Martin says he will try to cover them by working in two flags on a blue ground.

RAILROADS ARE SWAMPED BY NEW ORDER

Officials Explain McAdoo Ruling; Ask Public Not to Hurry for Rebates

Officials of railroads operating in New England are marking time as to methods of placing increased passenger fares into operation on June 10, as ordered by Director-General McAdoo. The order of the United States railroad administration head is so drastic and totally unlike changes previously made by railroads that the officials have no precedent to follow, and are awaiting instructions from Washington as to how the order shall be carried out.

That the railroads out of Boston will have a big job on their hands to redeem all the outstanding tickets, is admitted by officials, who advise the public to go slow in asking for rebates in order to help them out of a difficult hole.

As local officials interpret the McAdoo order, every ticket of any description for travel on a railroad now in existence will be of no value as a transportation medium on or after June 10.—If a person has a 12-ride trip ticket to Newton, for instance, and only four rides have been used, he cannot continue to use the ticket by paying additional fare to the conductor. He must buy another ticket, receiving a rebate for the old one. The same is true of mileage or any other form of ticket.

This is a radical change from anything ever attempted by a railroad. When the railroads changed rates in the past they honored all outstanding tickets even if purchased years before. The automatic invalidation of all tickets outstanding June 10 is going to swamp the railroads in Boston with work.

New England railroad officials wish the public to know that old tickets may be redeemed after June 10. It is likely that the redemption value of commutation tickets will be greater after June 10 than before, so that it will probably be advisable for persons to hold their old tickets and cash them in after June 10.

The reason for this is evident. If a person has a 12-ride commutation ticket to West Newton, for instance, the special rate is ten cents a ride. If he uses five rides and wishes to get a rebate on the rtst of the ticket he is now allowed by twenty cents—the difference between the price of five rides at the full rate of twenty cents and the $1.20 he paid for the ticket.

It is the general belief that the railroads will issue a special notice allowing commuters the full pro rata amount for each ride left when then they turn in the balance of their tickets for redemption after Junt 10. So that instead of getting twenty cents for the balance of a ticket containing seven rides, a person who holds the ticket until June 10 or aftir will probably get seventy cents.

URGE PUBLIC NOT TO HURRY.

In the case of a man who gives up the remainder of a ticket today the act is voluntary. It is the theory that he has no further use for the ticket and is glad to get anything he can for what is left. In the other case the man is forced to give up the balance of his ticket on June 10 although he still desires to ride. Railroad officials admit that it would be unfair to force commuters to accept rebates under the regular rule on tickets that are effected by the McAdoo order.

While the railroads out of Boston will do their utmost to redeem all tickets presented on June 10 they hope the public will take its time about turning them in as it will materially help relieve what is expected to be a trying situation.

The clerical forces of the local roads are now working o nthe new tariff schedules which call for 3 cents a mile flat except on commutation tickets which call for an increase of 10 per cent.

ASQUITH NAMES ON HUN LIST IN BRITISH PLOT

London Amazed by Charges Made in Suit of Maud Allan, the Dancer

London, May 31.—British society and official circles are rocking today from shock at mention of names of international prominence in testimony given in the action brought by Maud Allan, the American dancer, against Noel Pemberton-Billings, M. P., in the Old Bailey Court.

Mrs. Eileen Villiers Stuart testified to having seen in a German-compiled list of 47,000 British persons alleged to be vice addicts and tools of Germany, the following distinguished names:

Former Premier Asquith.

Mrs. Asquith.

Viscount Haldane, former Secretary of War.

Justice Darling, before whom Miss Allan's suit is being tried.

MRS. KEPPEL ACCUSED.

Mrs. George Keppel, court beauty and favorite friend of the late King Edward, carried messages between England and Germany, according to testimony of Captain Harold Spencer, an American.

Mrs. Keppel was arbiter of London society while King Edward was alive. On his death she went into seclusion for two years. It was said this was due to a promise to King Edward to leave London for two years after he died. She returned here in 1912 with her debutante daughter, Violet, and re-entered society under direct patronage of Lady Paget and Lady Saville.

Other great names in connection with this remarkable case include:

Prince William of Wied, former ruler of Albania. Captain Spencer testified he was once aide-de-camp to the Prince, who showed him the "47,000 addicts" list.

Marie Corelli, English novelist. Captain Spencer said her letter to him was basis of statements that led to Maud Allan's present action against Pemberton-Billings.

Earl Carnavon, who received Captain Spencer's report of the whole affair, the captain said.

BILLINGS ACCUSED MISS ALLAN.

Billings had charged that Miss Allan was elligible to inclusion in the list. He defended himself by declaring that the German spies included some of the highest officials "who crippled England's war power through fear of exposure."

When this testimony had been given Mrs. Stuart was ordered by Justice Darling to leave the witness chair.

Miss Allan admitted in the course of the trial that she is the sister of Theodore Durrant, the San Francisco murderer, whose trial several years ago attracted wide attention.

The defense contended that Theodore Durrant's degeneracy existed in the dancer. Justice Darling, despite fervent objection by the plaintiff's counsel, forced the dancer to admit the relationship.

ADDS TO SENSATION.

Captain Spencer, who followed Mrs. Stuart on the stand, added to the sensation by corroborating her testimony in part and also telling of his discovery during the political crisis of last September of a plan evolved in financial circles to return Mr. Asquith to power to make a German peace.

He had informed Lord Carnarvon of this plan, he said, and when the latter pooh-poohed it he took the matter up with Admiral Mayo, the American naval commander, in order that the plot might be frustrated. Mrs. George Keppel, he said, carried the messages between England and Germany.

Mrs. Stuart testified that she had seen the book in the presence of Neil Primrose and Major Rothschild, both now dead. The book was kept in the palace of Prince William of Weid, the one-time ruler of Albania. She supposed the book was now in Germany.

Mr. Billings had a brief tiff with Justice Darling, saying:

"We cannot win the war while you are doing the work of the Hun." The judge had stopped Mr. Billings from questioning Captain Spencer while the latter was telling of his investigations in Albania, where the book had been seen, and of his reporting the facts to the Foreign Office.

Captain Spencer and Mrs. Asquith and Lord Haldane were named in the book. Not getting any action through the Foreign Office, he said, he resorted to the party machine. Laying the facts before Earl Carnavon, Captain Lane, who was General Smuts' aid-de-camp, was quoted as saying the story would pull down the entire fabric of the Government. Later, he said, the matter was brought to the attention of the Premier's secretary.

Captain Spencer said he had made many notes from the blank book in Prince William's palace and had since seen them in the office of Commander Cozens Hardy at the Admiralty. After each name, there was an indication how the particular person might best be approached. He did not know what had become of his original notes which had been placed in a trunk in Rome.

Capt. Spencer told the court his life had been threatened, whereupon Mr. Billings applied to Justice Darling for protection for himself and his witnesses during the trial. His request was referred to the commissioner of police.

Capt. Harold Sherwin, another witness, testified that he had seen the book and reported the matter to the Navy, the War Office and the Foreign Office. He said he was told the revelations would undermine faith in the government. Later he was held as a prisoner in France, the doctors saying he had hallucinations. He was released only on an order from Downing street.

Mr. Billings offered to produce the letter from Marie Corelli on which the alleged statement about Miss Allan was based. The judge overruled an objection to this saying, "It is well known that Miss Corelli is a writer of fiction." The novelist will be subpoenaed.

KING EDWARD'S FAVORITE, WHOM CAPTAIN ACCUSES

Mrs. George Keppel, who was society arbiter during the reign of Edward VII. because of the ruler's patronage. Captain Harold Spencer declared in a London trial she had carried messages between Germany and England.

LADY CHURCHILL WILL WED NIGERIAN OFFICIAL

London, May 31.—Lady Randolph Churchill, formerly Miss Jennie Jerome of New York, is going to try a third cup of coffee at the matrimonial banquet. This time she has been wooed and won by Montague Porch, a Nigerian government official.

Lady Churchill is the mother of Winston Spencer Churchill, minister of munitions. Lord Randolph Churchill whom she married in 1874, died in 1895. Five years later she married George Cornwallis-West whom she divorced in 1913, resuming her maiden name.

LAUDS G. O. P. FOR SUPPORT OF U. S. IN WAR

Republicans More Unitedly Behind Wilson Than Democrats, Says Weeks

Republican support of the Administration on the war legislation in Congress has been more solid than that given by the Democrats, Senator John W. Weeks told the Franco-American Republican Club at its anand banquet at the American House. Both in actual number of votes cast on roll calls and in percentages the Republicans have led, he said, in carrying through the measures most necessary for winning the war.

Even during the war, the Senator declared, there is a place for the two great political parties in the conduct of the affairs of the Government, and he urged the election of Republicans to deal wisely with the great economic questions which the war has developed.

Referring to the successful completion of the Red Cross drive, he said that the people are being educated to give, and that succeeding drives for even larger amounts will be carried through with less difficulty as the public comes to see that it must make sacrifices in support of those who have gone to the other side to make, if necessary, the su-

Joseph F. Pelletier of Salem, the newly elected president of the club, introduced the other speakers, Channing H. Cox, speaker of the House; George A. Bacon, of Springfield, chairman of the Republican State Committee and Edward A. Thurston of Fall River, Mr. Bacon's predecessor as head of the State organization.

Mr. Pelletier's election followed the declination of Representatvie Henry Achin, Jr., of Lowell, to serve another term. The other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Omer Smith of Lowell, Dr. Joseph N. Carriere of Fitchburg, George Lieberge of Lynn and Joseph Lussier of Holyoke; secretary, Edward A. Brodeur of Worcester; treasurer, Emil J. Erard of Springfield.

MULES AND BLANKETS FOR AMERICAN PIANOS

New York, May 31.—American-made pianos are being exchanged in Spain for mules and blankets for the use of our army on the western front according to George W. Pound, manager of the National Manufacturer's Association. "The demand for pianos has persisted in Spain," said Mr. Pound, today, "in spite of the fact that the prices of musical instruments have doubled and trebled since the beginning of the war. This has given American piano manufacturers an unusual opportunity to help Uncle Sam pay war bills."

SEEK TO SEND MISS LUSK TO MAD HOUSE

Lawyers of Convicted Slayer to Ask Special Inquiry as to Her Sanity

By International News Service.

Waukesha, Wis., May 31.—It seems probable that Grace Lusk, school teacher slayer of Mary Newman Roberts, will never hear pronounced the court's sentence which will formally condemn her to fourteen to twenty-five years' imprisonment, in accordance with the verdict rendered by the jury. Her attorneys are preparing to ask that a special inquisition into her sanity be made by the court.

They will set forth the fact, supported by evidence, that their client, if not mad when she became a murderess, became violently insane upon pronouncement of the verdict. And they will point out the fact that under the Wisconsin statutes an insane person cannot be sentenced to the penitentiary.

Acting District Attorney Tullar intimated he would not oppose such action by the defendant's counsel. Miss Lusk, it is claimed, has not had a lucid interval since the reading of the verdict.

Believes a Jury of Women Would Have Freed Grace Lusk

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Waukesha, Wis., May 31.—Grace Lusk knows her fate. The twelve Wisconsin farmers decided she was sane when she killed Mrs. Roberts and guilty of murder in the second degree. No one expected an acquittal.

There have been so many strange elements in this trial, and not the least strange among them that dozens of Grace Lusk's former pupils should have heard her branded as a murderess, a cave-woman and an actress.

I have talked with scores of these girls and I have yet to hear one of them say anything worse of her than at times she had a peppery temper, and then qualified it with, "but I guess I deserved it."

There is something relentless about the whole tangle of this superfine school-mistress, the coarse little stable quack and his dead wife, who not only forgave his infidelities, but even sometimes helped to adjust them.

BORN UNDER UNLUCKY STAR.

It would seem that Grace Lusk was born under an unlucky star, if there are such things. The frugal girlhood, with its privations and grinding toil, the clean, wholesome life for nearly four decades, and then the love madness that undid everything. And made of this self-contained vestal, who had spent her youth in burning the midnight oil over her books, something akin to a harpy who clamored for the publication of her illicit relations with the horse doctor.

I believe if she had been tried by a jury of women they would have regarded her as mad or acquitted her altogether. Sane women do not cast aside in a day the traditions of a lifetime. They are not recast into different molds by men like Roberts; there was something abnormal, unaccountable, unnatural about her infatuation for him.

Grace Lusk's life is as over and done for as if they had lowered her body into the grave with those haunting final words:

"Dust to dust, ashes to ashes."

That was what she had hoped for when she turned the revolver on her breast after killing Mrs. Roberts. I have heard her tell the jury how hard it is to kill one's self. Tell them with that curiously naive expression that is half elfin, half child-like, and how she had tried to send Dr. Davies out of the room before she fired the last shot at herself because "she did not want him to feel badly."

And Dr. Davies corroborated this amazing bit of testimony.

The jury did not find her insane, but certainly it would have been justified in finding her abnormal. A woman who had just taken life, who had shot herself twice, was suffering acutely and expected to die — yet who was concerned with all manner and sorts of things like distressing Dr. Davies and worrying over what she had done to Bianca Mills' door.

The relentless element again crops out in the scene of the interview with Mrs. Roberts.

If Dr. Roberts had not dissuaded his wife from going to Miss Lusk's office in the Y. M. C. A. building there would have been no shooting, because Grace Lusk's revolver was not there. But at home in the Mills cottage, where Mrs. Roberts went for that long-deferred explanation.

ONLY SHE CAN TELL TRUTH.

Tullar of the volcanic eloquence says Grace Lusk never went upstairs for the Roberts letters, but for a gun to kill.

No one but Grace Lusk can tell the truth about the matter, and she has denied it, saying she went up to get the letters, found the gun and then decided to kill herself. But the epithets of the other woman drove her mad and she lost consciousness and shot without knowing it. In this one seems to see the relentless hand of fate. The horse doctor, by every subterfuge at his command, had tried to keep the two women apart. Several times he had prevented a meeting, and when they did meet finally there was a gun handy.

It was the unexpected that happened. Roberts had had so much experience in the adjustment of these affairs that he never dreamed his diplomatic skill would fail him. But fail it did, and he went out of the Mills house, leaving one woman dead and the other apparently dying.

He went for a doctor, but he did not come back—through the whole affair Roberts has evinced a positive genius for evading unpleasant situations.

THE BRIDE — Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, widow of the late New York millionaire—formerly divorced wife of Dr. Smith Hollins McKim of Baltimore—before that the dashing Baltimore belle, Margaret Emerson, daughter of the Baltimore millionaire, Colonel Isaac E. Emerson.

THE GROOM—Raymond T. Baker, Director of the Mint. Resident of Nevada. Secretary for four years to Ambassador Marye at Petrograd.

EARLY WEDDING, PLAN OF MRS. VANDERBILT

Washington, May 31.—"Well, one certainly never knows what Margaret Emerson is going to do next," exclaimed one of the capital matrons when it was announced that Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt was to wed Raymond T. Baker, Director of the Mint.

And thus she summed up in a sentence the unexpectedness of the dashing Margaret Emerson who only a few years ago was known as the impetuous, mad-cap Baltimore belle. Ever since her advent into society she has given the staid old matrons something to talk about.

Impetuous as ever, Mrs. Vanderbilt has set the wedding for an early date and the place as Hopewood, her country place at Lenox, Mass. Senator Key Pittman will be the best man. Only a few friends of the principals will attend. Among them will be Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, President Wilson's physician, and Secretary to the President Joseph P. Tumulty.

SHE HAS $8,100,930.

Mr. Baker is a resident of Nevada. He was made director of the mint by President Wilson about a year ago. He served four years as secretary at Petrograd to the then American Ambassador Marye.

Since the publication of her late husband's will disclosed that the former Margaret Emerson, the Baltimore society belle, had been the beneficiary to the tune of $8,100,930, capital matchmakers have felt that such a choice, eligible widow could not remain single for long.

And now that its out they all say that it is characteristic of Mrs. Vanderbilt to set the wedding for early next month. The couple will go to the Pacific coast for a wedding trip afterward making the capital city their home.

TOOK LIFE WITH A DASH.

Since Margaret-Emerson-McKim Vanderbilt, the daughter of Colonel Isaac E. Emerson, the Baltimore millionaire, burst into national society, her career has comprised all the high lights that one woman could have possibly crowded into a comparatively short life.

First she was wooed and won by a dashing young Baltimore physician, Dr. Smith Hollis McKim, whom she later divorced. Then she went abroad, where society soon noticed that the young New York millionaire who had revived coaching in London, generally had as a daily passenger beside him on the driver's seat, the young divorcee from Baltimore.

Hardly had rumor had a chance to link their names well together when the pair slipped out of London down to Reigate, a town half way to Brighton, on the coach route he had established, and were married at the registry office.

Mrs. Vanderbilt immediately took a stellar part in the social life of the American colony in London and Paris and went in devotedly for her husband's hobby of coaching.

TRAGEDY COMES TO HER.

Later they returned to this country and opened their Newport villa, where Mrs. Vanderbilt essayed for a time to fill the place as social leader formerly occupied by Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, her husband's divorced wife.

Everything seemed at last to have straightened out for happiness for the former Margaret Emerson. A huge fortune at her disposal, the influence and standing of the Vanderbilt family name, villas at Newport and Lenox, besides the palatial New York residence—all seemed ready to combine to make her one of the most to be envied women in the world.

Then came the sailing of the Lusitania, her husband's insistence on sailing despite the German warning of destruction awaiting the liner, the torpedoing of the boat and Mr. Vanderbilt's drowning with the other victims. Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt was a widow again.

Mrs. Vanderbilt withdrew wholly from society during a long period of mourning. She devoted her life to the rearing of their two sons, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Jr., and George. She has since divided her time between Washington, New York, the Adirondacks and her estate, "Homewood," in Lenox, Mass.

HUB MEN RAISE SHIPPING ARMY FOR UNCLE SAM

Henry Howard and L. K. Liggett Have Enrolled Thousands in One Year of Recruiting

The recruiting service of the United States Shipping Board, the child of two well-known Boston men, Henry Howard and Louis K. Liggett, is one year old today, and it is a lusty infant, furnishing trained officers and men for the new ships as fast as they are completed—at present about three a day.

When Congress appropriated the first $50,000,000 for the Shipping Board and the then chairman, William Denman, announced that it was the intention of the board to have 1,000 new ships in the water at the end of 1918, Henry Howard, a Boston chemist, and a noted yachtsman, asked himself where the board was going to find officers for this great fleet.

Receiving no answer to his introspective inquiry, he put the question to others. Still receiving no answer, he conceived the idea of establishing training schools for officers, taking men who had experience at sea, either in the deck or engineering departments on merchant vessels and in the navy. He carried this idea to Washington, where it was received with enthusiasm by John A. Donald of the Shipping Board and o... by Chairman Denman.

SALARY $1 A YEAR.

Mr. Howard was appointed director of recruiting at a slary of $1 per year, came to Boston and opened headquarters in the Custom House. That was one year ago today. Today there are twenty-five schools of navigation in the country training deck officers under the direction of Dean Alfred E. Burton of Tech, and nine schools for training engineer officers under the direction of Professor Edward F. Miller of the same institution.

In the year nearly 6,000 new deck and engineer officers' licenses have been issued to competent Americans.

Early this year it became evident that there would be a great shortage of seamen, firemen, oilers and cooks to man the ships. Here is where Louis K. Liggett fits into the story. Mr. Liggett, who is head of the Rexall organization, which has 6,854 drug stores in the United States, offered Director Howard the use of these stores as recruiting agencies.

DRUGGISTS ENROLLING AGENTS.

The druggists were sworn in as special enrolling agents at $1 per year. Each druggist was empowered to appoint an examining physician at the same salary. They are sending in men at the rate of 110 per day.

Training stations have been or will be shortly established in Boston, San Francisco, Seattle and New Orleans. Seven training ships, one receiving ship and one station ship have been commandeered, and trained men are now being turned out at the rate of 1,500 per month. This number will be gradually increased, and by early Fall the training ships will be graduating 4,000 men every month.

LOYALTY PLEDGED BY POSTOFFICE CLERKS

New Bedford, May 31.—Postoffice clerks of Massachusetts, in convention here, adopted resolutions pledging loyalty to the country and placing their lives and property at the disposal of the President. Congressman William S. Greene addressed the delegates on legislation affecting postal employes.

Officers elected were: President, Charles J. Dunlevy, Brockton; vice-presidents, Thomas W. McAuliffe, New Bedford, and George A. Lennon, Haverhill; secretary, Thomas J. Durvin, Lynn; treasurer, Thomas F. Cushing, Springfield.

PITTSFIELD TROLLEY MEN CAST VOTE FOR STRIKE

Pittsfield, May 31.—The union employes of the Berkshire Street Railway Company have voted to strike at midnight Friday unless their demands for higher wages and a new working agreement are granted.

According to union leaders, a strike would tie up all the trolley service in Berkshire County and at Pownal and Bennington in Vermont. Their agreement expires June 1.

Brown Trustees Elected

Providence, R. I., May 31.—The Brown University Corporation elected Herbert H. Rice of Detroit and William P. Sheffield of Newport to the board of trustees, and Edmond Wood of New Bedford, Mass., and Alfred C. Beford of Brooklyn as members of the corporation.

TO

The Building-Contractors
The Carpenters' Union
And the General Public:

The Carpenters' District Council of Boston and Vicinity is demanding an increase in wages, from 65 cents to 75 cents an hour and a 5-day working week for House-Carpenters, beginning June 1st.

We have offered 75 cents an hour (an increase of 10 cents per hour) for a 5½-day working week, which they have refused.

At this time, when there is so much to be done and so few to do it, there is no good reason why Carpenters should not work Saturday mornings, for the duration of the war, at least, the same as the other Unions in the building trades.

Consequently, we ask the Building Contractors, the Carpenters themselves and the General Public to support us in our stand.

It isn't a question of wages, for we're willing to grant the increase.

It's a question of giving service in this hour of need when all of us must do our bit.

HELD IN RIVER BY OVERTURNED AUTO

Springfield, May 31.—Lieutenant Guy Fuller, son of Frank E. Fuller, and stationed in the Quartermaster's Corps in Boston, and his fiancee, Miss Ethel Haddock of New York, were seriously injured in Leeds when the officer lost control of his automobile and it plunged over a twenty-foot embankment into Mill River.

Fuller was pinned beneath the rear wheel and up to his neck in water. Miss Haddock, who was internally injured and may die, was hurled partway into the stream also. Dr. Walter Taylor of Northampton, who came by in a machine, tried to jack the machine up with a fence rail and release Fuller, but failed until he was assisted by the crew and six passengers of a trolley car.

DECLARE U-BOATS ARE NOW IN GULF STREAM

An Atlantic Port, May 31.—U-boats are operating in the Gulf Stream, according to passengers on a steamship from Brazil. Among those who spoke of the U-boat activities was Sir Leslie Probyn, former Governor of Barbadoes.

"On May 16," said Sir Leslie, "wireless reports received at Barbados told of two U-boats operating near Bermuda. Shortly after we left Barbadoes we got word of the U-boats by wireless and put back. When we started north again we kept clear of the Gulf Stream and zigzagged all the way."

OLDFIELD NEAR DEATH AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY

New York, May 31.—Barney Oldfield was close to death while tuning up his car at the speedway, Sheepshead Bay, when Lieutenant Eddie Rickenbacker's Duesenberg, driven by William Vetera, became unmanageable and turned "turtle" at the south end of the track. Oldfield just managed to pass the machine, which was directly ahead of him, without striking it. He was making more than one hundred miles an hour at the time.

48 AIR CRAFT OF GERMANS SHOT DOWN

French Also Drop 23 Tons of Explosives on Bridges Over Aillette and Aisne

By International News Service.

Paris, May 31.—The French aviators, immediately after the start of the German drive, began a gigantic destructive campaign against the German communications which is still in full swing. Forty-eight German machines were brought down by the French flyers. On Monday, twenty-three tons of explosives were dropped at nighttime on the bridges over the Aillette and Aisne. Forty-seven tons were hurled on Laon and Flames, the official communique says.

The text of the statement on French aviation during the great battle between Rheims and Soissons follows:

"Our aviators participated actively in the battle. The endurance, bravery and daring of our flyers are beyond praises.

"In the course of the battle numerous fights were fought in the air and our aviators also undertook flights at a low altitude, attacking the enemy troops with their machine guns and accomplishing forward reconnoissances.

"During Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, nineteen enemy airplanes were destroyed in air fights, two captive balloons were brought down in flames and twenty-three machines were drives down in a damaged condition.

"During Monday night twenty-three tons of explosives were dropped on the bridges and passages of the Aillette and Aisne, as well as on enemy cantonments at Guincourt and Justincourt.

"During the night and on the following day thirty-seven tons of projectiles were dropped on convoys, troops on the march and on the stations of Laon and Flames.

"Strong explosions and fires were reported to have resulted at the stations of Flames, Laon and Coucy-Le-Sospes. An ammunition dump exploded at Flames. Between Monday and Wednesday six German battle planes were brought down."

CHINESE REFUSE TO ACCEPT PUBLIC AID

Pasadena, Calif., May 31.—When fire destroyed half of the Chinatown of this city the Pasadena Welfare Bureau discovered that Chinese and Japanese were the hardest people in the world to get to accept public aid. The bureau tried for a week to give away a good suit of men's clothes. The suit was offered to at least a dozen worthy orientals, who had lost everything they possessed. Each refused to accept it gratis, but several offered to buy it.

MOVE TO CHANGE NAME OF GERMAN HOSPITAL

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 31.—At a meeting of the ways and means committee of the German Hospital board of trustees, A. F. Schurmann, chairman, presented a petition to change the name of the institution. It will be acted on at the meeting of the trustees on June 10.

TRAIN STOLEN, R. R. WRECK IS THE RESULT

Police Hold Several Suspects In Strange Accident on the Central

By International News Service.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 31.—Police and railroad authorities are holding several men in connection with the railroad wreck on the New York Central between Norwood and Massena, when eastbound train No. 23 ran into a yard engine and six cars, which had been stolen and left standing on the main line when the steam ran low. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

There were but two passengers on train 23 and both escaped, but the engineer and fireman suffered slight injuries.

Massena and Norwood police and railroad detectives are investigating the affair. About midnight a gang of several men, believed to be from Massena, took a shifting engine that had been left standing on a siding with six cars ahead of it, and started with for Norwood. They were evidently unable to operate the locomotive very well, for steam dropped so low that it stalled near Plaumbrook.

The engine and cars were abandoned and the eastbound train crashed into them. The passenger train was made up of a baggage car, express car, combination car, coach, two refrigerator cars and two milk cars.

USE POISON GAS ON UKRAINIAN PEASANTS

By International News Service.

London, May 31.—The Germans, according to a Petrograd dispatch to the Express, used poison gas against the Ukrainian peasants who were defending their rights against the invaders. Several villages were drenched with poisonous fumes and whole communities in the vicinity of Kief were asphyxiated.

Science Solves the Butter Problem with Butter Made from the White Meat of Cocoanuts

Just when the price of butter threatens to make it an unattainable luxury, science perfects TROCO, the new vegetable butter made from the white meat of the cocoanut.

It tastes exactly like the finest creamery butter and is even more wholesome and pure.

It is churned with fresh Pasteurized milk to give true butter flavor.

Because of old laws, made before this discovery, we are compelled to label this nut-made butter as oleomargarine.

But it contains no oleo oils—no hog or beef fat, nor any preservatives.

TROCO is simply vegetable fats, churned with milk for the butter taste.

Yet this appetizing combination costs no more than does the best grades of oleomargarine.

TROCO

Can't Be Told From Butter

TROCO has all the good qualities of fine creamery butter. The only difference you will notice is the cost.

It is as nutritious as cream butter, and as easily digested. It possesses the fuel value needed for energy.

TROCO when served has butter's golden color, because we supply the same vegetable coloring used by all butter makers.

Served on your table, without explanation, no one can tell the difference.

Goes Farther In Cooking

TROCO, used in cooking, gives the same results as butter, except that it goes farther. Cooks should remember this and reduce the amount.

It makes such cake as has not been known since butter soared in price.

It allows the old-fashioned "rich cooking" that builds up the family health.

Your Dealer Can Supply TROCO

If your dealer doesn't already keep TROCO, ask him to get it for you. Tell him you must have this new-day successor to butter.

Insist until he secures a supply.

For TROCO solves one of the biggest problems presented by our high food prices —

—The problem of serving appetizing, wholesome butter at a moderate cost.

Made by the

TROCO NUT BUTTER CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

HILTON & ALDRICH CO.,
40 South Market St., Boston.
New England Distributors

NOTICE: Under the law, all butter substitutes must be branded Oleomargarine. That law was passed before TROCO was invented. So the TROCO package is branded "Oleomargarine," though there is no oleo in it. All butter substitutes must pay an extra tax if colored. So the color for TROCO comes in a capsule. Add it yourself, as you do with Oleomargarine.

Begin To Purify Your Winter-Blood

Grandmother's Old-Fashioned Sulphur and Molasses Did It.

But Not So Well As This Sulpherb Tablet—Sugar Coated.

Through the winter the blood accumulates poisons because you do not perspire enough, because you do not live in the open air, and because you eat more meat, mush and other rich foods. Every spring we feel sluggish, constipated, liver and kidneys ills beset us, colds and chronic coughs, pimples, boils and carbuncles, all evidence of impure, thick, sluggish blood.

Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets) are composed of extracts of roots and herbs, combined with sulphur and cream of tartar—and no better physic, blood-tonic and blood cleanser has ever been developed. Every spring thousands who already know their value take them to purify the system of Winter Poisons. Now is the time to begin, so you won't be attacked by serious ailments when Spring and Summer come. Sold by all druggists 50c per sealed tube with full directions.—Advertisement.

BABY HAD ECZEMA FOR 7 MONTHS

Cross and Had to Have Hands Tied. Cuticura Healed. Total Cost $1.25.

"After my baby was [illegible] month old he started to have eczema and he had it seven months. It was in pimples on his face, and they were watery. He was very cross and had to have his hands tied. The eruption was so itchy I had to rub him, and it kept me awake.

"I read about Cuticura, so I used one box of Cuticura Ointment with three cakes of Soap when he was all healed." (Signed) Mrs. Adelina Bellofatto, 6 E. Lincoln St., Marlboro, Mass., Sept. 17, 1917.

Most skin troubles might be prevented by using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for every-day toilet purposes.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address postcard: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c.

Headache—Depression?

FROM KIDNEY DISORDERS

Headaches and depression may be due to several causes. Perhaps yours are such as you? May be kidney and bladder disorders are the cause? If so, you surely want relief and restoration.

Indiscretions in eating and drinking bring on such troubles very gradually, sometimes—as other times quickly.

Balmwort Tablets

will bring the desired benefit if such symptoms are present as these: If the secretion that passes is highly colored, strong of odor, insufficient or too copious, followed by pain, burning, irritation, smarting, etc.; if chills or fever come and go, if the head aches, the eyes burn and rheumatic pains, general discomfort and nervousness besiege you, Balmwort Kidney Tablets

ARE NEEDED BY YOU

Not secret, not new, just right and true. Sold by all druggists.—Advertisement.

GET NEW KIDNEYS!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail their work of sifting out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, trouble begins in earnest.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Advertisement.

KILLED GERMANS UNTIL THEY GOT TIRED

Arlington Boy Tells of Slaughter, With Enemy Walking on Bodies of Dead

A letter written by Ward F. Chick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Chick of No. 22 Highland avenue, Arlington, now a member of the Quartermasters' Corps of the United States army in France, during the last great drive of the Germans on the western front, has been received in Arlington by a friend, Arthur E. Watkins of No. 48 Gray street.

In this letter Chick tells how the Germans crossed a canal on a bridge of their own dead and fought from behind the piled up bodies of their own men, who were killed off in such large numbers that the allied gunners grew sick and exhausted from the very work of the slaughter.

Chick expressed his belief that the war will be a long one. He tells of the spirit of France—"undying, unconquerable, a living real thing, personified in the devotion of her women and brave soldiers."

DOESN'T UNDERESTIMATE FOE

In part, the letter reads as follows:

"But we are all in the service now (at least every one should be), for it is the only way that we can beat the Boche. And you at home must not underestimate the German—far be it. "At the present writing one of the great decisive battles of the war is being fought, and the Huns are spurring everything within their means and all their power to crush the Allied lines before Paris and Picardy.

The result is still in doubt, but we all have faith in General Foch's power and military knowledge to roll them back. The German losses are and have been enormous and unheard of disregard of human life for the sake of a few yards gained. Can you imagine a regiment after regiment being sent up in mass formation, wave on wave, to be mowed down by the machine guns and the 75s until the gunners grew sick and exhausted from the very work of slaughter?

FOUGHT BEHIND BODIES.

"In one instance, the Germans crossed a canal on a bridge of their own dead and fought from behind the piled up bodies of their own men.

"But, you have, no doubt, read accounts of these losses. I simply give these instances to show at what great cost they are making their gains. And so it goes in every battle of this war.

"But to get away from these already too well known facts, we are all very hopeful over here. The spirit and morale of the Yanks is a thing of wonderment to the Allied armies and in all the battles which they have fought in to date have more than given a good account of themselves, much to Fritz's chagrin and dismay.

"Personally I believe the end to be still far off and the task far greater than most people back home realize, but always we live in hope and faith that soon something will come up that will insure an early peace and final victory.

TROOPS EVER MOVING.

"Troops continue to come and go away to the front in ever increasing numbers. It certainly is essential that we have a million and a half troops here as soon as possible, otherwise our other efforts will avail us nothing in other lines.

"Getting too much on the military part and not giving you any interesting observances of my own or otherwise. But ever have we orders to do much else than think and talk about them and instead of saying 'Show long before peace' (as I see in the tone of the papers at home), the boys over here say, 'How long before the next push' well knowing that this is the only way to peace and the quickest way.

"I was walking through a little cemetery about three weeks ago visiting the graves of one of my comrades (one of the first American soldiers to lay down his life for our flag and France) when I noticed a little sweet, motherly woman standing at the head of a new grave. I stopped near her to read the inscription, and then, as she looked at me, I expressed my sympathy. She said, 'My last of four sons—all dead,' and then with a light in her eyes (but few ever see, she threw back her head until she looked into the very face of the sun, and said, with a clear, ringing voice, 'But thank the good God, France still lives.'"

SEEK GIRL'S RELEASE AS THEFT CASE WITNESS

Relatives of Ruth Pellans, the sixteen-year old girl who is held by the Boston police as a witness in the case of Frank Collins, held in $10,000 for the alleged larceny of jewelry said to be valued at more than $100,000, came from Syracuse, N. Y., the family home, and today seek the release of the girl in the Juvenile Court.

Remember!

You MUST pay your income and excess profits taxes on or before June 15.

If you fail to do so you will be assessed 5 per cent. of the amount due.

You will also be charged interest at the rate of 1 per cent. a month.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1918. — LIBERTY

FORBID INSIGNIA OF FOREIGN SERVICE

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 31. — An order from Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the First Naval District, has been posted on board the Receiving Ship, calling attention to the wearing of unauthorized insignia, denoting foreign service, on uniforms in the Navy.

Several months ago orders were issued by the Bureau of Navigation, prescribing the insignia to be used by men in the Navy who took part in the demonstration against Mexico. Thus far, however, no official sanction has been given to the use of any form of designation by the sailors who have served abroad during the present war.

Notwithstanding, rumors have reached the authorities from time to time that foreign service stripes were being worn. This is thought to have been due more to a lack of knowledge of the requirements than to an intention to violate regulations.

Admiral Wood's order is addressed to the commandants of all of the stations in the First Naval District and calls upon them to take note of any men of the enlisted personnel "presuming to add service stripes to their uniforms," and to "hold such men in detention" until such stripes are removed.

The order further states that the Navy Department has the whole subject of wearing stripes to designate foreign service under consideration and presumably in due season will issue an order dealing with the matter.

Memorial Day passed quietly on the ship. A large part of the men were away on shore leave. It is a commendation for the efficiency work that has been performed by the Provost Guards of both the army and navy that none of the men overstayed his leave and none gave evidence of having come in contact with "boot-leggers."

EDITORIAL

The rapidity with which the new men from Camp Upton are rounding into capable soldiers shows how well the men at Camp Devens have been trained. The Upton recruits have been assimilated by the former depleted units of the Seventy-Sixth division and their efficient and thoroughly disciplined environment has enabled them to acquire the necessary preliminary military knowledge with a rapidity that is pleasing the various company and regimental commanders.

Practically every one of the so-called veterans in the division has been turned into an instructor and the genuine interest which they have shown in imparting what they have learned to their new comrades is an excellent example of the morale of our national army.

MORE MUSIC FOR CAMP DEVENS' SOLDIERS

By WILLIAM FLYNN

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 31.—The army bands are coming into their own and orders have been issued to increase the size of the bands at this cantonment. Under the new organization each authorized band will consist of forty-nine men, commanded by either a first or a second lieutenant, and the title of band leader will be abolished.

The regulations also provide for two more band sergeants and two band corporals and it is expected that several of the present band leaders who qualified will be commissioned.

The bands hereafter will form a complete section of the headquarters company of each organization entitled to a band. In addition a bugle and drum corps for each band has been authorized and the allowance for music has been increased.

All of these changes are said to have been made upon the recommendation of General Pershing, and although the available band material is scarce the new orders have caused joy among the members of the various bands and other musicians here.

TIME LIMIT ON CIVILIANS IN CAMP

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 31.—The members of the provost guard have been instructed to arrest all civilians who are found in the cantonment after 7:30 p. m. without proper escort.

Civilians employed on construction work in the cantonment are authorized to go to their quarters along the main road, but have been prohibited from visiting any other part of the camp unescorted after hours.

Persons taken into custody by the provost guard in the future will be held pending investigation.

A new board has been appointed to investigate and recommend action upon all claims that are make against the Government for damages done to private or leased property in and about the reservation. Lieutenant-Colonel Charles A. Romeyn of the 302d infantry, acting division inspector, is chairman of the board, and other members are Major John W. Farley of the 303d infantry and First Lieutenant Thomas L. Gately of the quartermaster corps detachment.

Jack Nugent, the former Holy Cross baseball star, and L. McDermott, both from Worcester, have resigned as candidates at the fourth officers' training school and have been sent back to B Company of the 301st ammunition train as privates.

FIND SOLDIER'S BODY IN MUDDY RIVER

A military identification card "No. 1,691,890, Charles E. Kenney," was found on the body of a soldier recovered from Muddy River in the Fenway by the Metropolitan Park police. Another identification card on the body was marked "Charles Kenney, 281 Warren street, Roxbury."

It was said at that address that Kenney was attached to the 301st Regiment at Camp Devens. He had been in the service but a few weeks. He was twenty-seven years old.

PNEUMATIC TUBE SITUATION STALLED

Washington, May 31.—Deadlocked, the conferees on the purchase of the pneumatic postal tubes by the Government have adjourned until Monday. The Senators and five Representatives who are conferring on the post office appropriation bill, were unable to reach any agreement and the whole discussion was abandoned temporarily after an hour's session.

Three senatorial conferees, Bankhead, Hardwick and Townsend, favor the purchase of the tubes. Steenerson and Bell of the House members are said to favor the purchase and operation, and Rouse, Moon and Madden are credited with opposition. The purchase price is set in the bill at $4,432,000.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE ON WORK OF RED CROSS

An important all-day conference on the home service work of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross and its branches will be held next Tuesday at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

It will be under the auspices of the home service section of the chapter and will be attended by the home service committees and workers and their executive officers of the chapter and the branches to the number of about 250.

Former United States Senator Towne Recommends Nuxated Iron

To All Who Feel the Need of Renewed Energy Says That Henceforth He Shall Not Be Without It.

Probably no remedy has ever met with more phenomenal success than Nuxated Iron — Over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone, to say nothing of the vast number who are using it in France, England, South America and other countries. It has been highly endorsed and used by Former United States Senators and Members of Congress; physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Nannini, a prominent Clergyman, recommends it to all. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician. Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders.

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

What Senator Towne Says:—

"As a member of Congress from New York, as a member of Congress and Senator from Minnesota, as participant in political campaigns and candidate for Vice-President, my nervous energy and reserve force were tremendously drawn upon. That I survived these trials and came into advanced middle life with the elasticity and strength of a boy is unquestionably due to the rigorous attention I have paid to the proper care of my body. Recently I have been taking Nuxated Iron and have found it of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth, I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the advantage of others, to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to all who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions."

Minnesota's Man of Mark—the Silver-Tongued Orator

Former United States Senator Charles A. Towne, graduated from the University of Michigan, was twice elected member of the United States Congress, served in the United States Senate, nominated for Vice-President, takes Nuxated Iron, and says that henceforth he shall not be without it.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which has been used by former United States Senator Chas. A. Towne with such surprising results and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

THE NOVEL THAT WOULDN'T WAIT!

THE IDEA first came to her several months ago. She brushed it aside because, like most authors, Kathleen Norris was engrossed in the war. And this was an idea for a novel which had nothing to do with the war.

But presently it returned, with greater intensity. Again she thrust it back and it was overshadowed by the struggle overseas.

The third time it came with even greater force. Here was a theme which would not be denied. It would not wait!

And so she wrote it—this story of a girl who tangled up the lives of those about her, of the great unselfish love of sisterhood—this story that she gave the name of "Sisters."

She sent it to GOOD HOUSEKEEPING—the very magazine which, above all others, has been devoting itself to the war service of American women. At first we wondered. But that was before we read it. Then we saw why Kathleen Norris could not wait to write this story. Then there was no choice. It wouldn't wait!

To you we feel that "Sisters" will be a welcome interlude. Not to distract your mind from what your duty is today. But rather to show you with new vividness how great the love of womankind can be, how eager in its sacrifice, in the life of every day.

And as you watch this book unfold its story in our pages, we think that you will turn again to all your burdens of today, refreshed and heartened by the glory of its message. Begin it, now, tonight!

HEALTH IN CAMPS BETTER THAN EVER

Washington, May 31.—Health conditions among the soldiers in divisional camps and cantonments, are better now than at any time since last November, the Surgeon-General's office reports. There has been a marked decrease in the death rate, a rapid falling off in the number of pneumonia cases and fewer cases of measles.

The death rate for the week ending May 24 was 1.93 in the divisional camps. This group also has the lowest sick rates. W

SHOW HOW TO PLANT WAR GARDENS

Practical Demonstration Given Daily to Boston Public on the Common

How to plant a garden in a back yard and assist Uncle Sam in winning the war is shown daily to thousands of people on Boston Common, where three or four plots of land have been tilled by officials of the State Public Safety Committee, under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Locate the home vegetable garden as near the house as possible," is the advice of H. F. Thompson of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, who is interested in the success of the Boston Common garden. "Put it on a light to medium loam soil, if this can be done. Plant the garden some time in advance, and put into it the vegetables which are particularly popular in your own home.

MAKE ROWS STRAIGHT.

"Where land is abundant make the garden extensive enough so that vegetables can be planted in rows which will permit of horse cultivation. Make the rows straight and comparatively long.

"It is well to work out your garden plan carefully on paper, for definite estimates can then be made as to amounts and costs of seeds and plants. Some equipment is needed to lighten the labor of caring for the garden. The most necessary tools are:

"One good six-tine manure fork; one good meadow hoe which should measure about eight inches across the blade and 2½ inches wide—smaller and lighter, if to be used by others than the men on the farm; one twelve to fourteen-toothed iron rake; one round pointed shovel; one wheelbarrow; one combination hand seed drill and wheel hoe. If the garden is arranged for horse cultivation, a small-tooth horse cultivator, preferably a spike-tooth cultivator with fourteen teeth, is needed.

"Garden soils need to be fertilized to give satisfactory results. The best way to put land into condition to raise good vegetables is to apply horse or cow manure liberally, putting on at least ten cords to the acre. The garden land should be comparatively level, and the manure may well be applied in the Fall and plowed in, or it may be put on during the Winter, or even plowed or harrowed in the Spring. It is a good plan to Fall plow the garden if possible. The frosts of Winter will kill out some soil pests and will act favorably on the soil. The land may then usually be worked earlier in the Spring.

SOIL SHOULD BE LIMED.

"In addition to the manuring of the garden, the soil should be limed. For this purpose either air-slacked or water-slacked lime should be applied at the rate of about 2,000 pounds to the acre. Put on after plowing or deep harrowing, and harrow into the surface three or four inches.

"A good commercial fertilizer, which analyzes about 3 per cent. nitrogen, 8 per cent. available phosphoric acid, should be used at the rate of eight pounds to the square rod. This should be applied just previous to planting and worked into the surface soil."

CHEER JEWISH CONTINGENT ON DEPARTURE FOR CANADA

The Jews of Greater Boston gave a rousing send-off to the fifth American contingent of the Jewish battalion which will do garrison duty in Palestine and Mesopotamia under the British flag, who left for Canada. This contingent, composed of 200 young men of the Jewish faith who come from neutral countries and are not subject to the American draft, when it reaches the Holy Land, will complete the first full brigade of the Jewish army, which is planned as a part of the Zionist program to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Upon their arrival at the South Station the volunteers were met by a committee selected from various Jewish organizations in Boston, and were served with breakfast. Later the volunteers formed in line, headed by officials from the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, and marched through the principal streets of the city to Lorimer Hall, Tremont Temple where addresses were made.

CAPT. JOHN H. DUNN SURPRISES FAMILY

The most welcome surprise of her life was given Mrs. John H. Dunn of Clarkwood street, Mattapan, when her husband, Captain John H. Dunn, formerly of the old Ninth Regiment, and now of the 101st, walked into the home unannounced and seated himself for breakfast. Mrs. Dunn had just finished reading a letter from her husband, dated from France. Captain Dunn told his family he was home for twenty-four hours. He accompanied the family to Framingham to decorate the family graves. He leaves for Washington today on special duty, and expects to return to France shortly.

HARVARD MAN TO WED WELLESLEY GIRL

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. MacDougall of Flushing, Long Island, New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian Dorothea MacDougall, to Leland Harrington Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Emery of No. 3 Stetson street, Lexington. Miss MacDougall, who is a graduate of St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, New Jersey, and the Rayson School, New York city, is now attending Wellesley College. Mr. Emery, who was graduated from Volkmann School, this city, in 1915, and who is a Harvard 1919 man, is now in France in the aviation service.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS OF WOUNDED SOLDIER FILED

Milford, May 31.—Town Clerk Dennis J. Sullivan has filed the marriage intention of Private Earle Raymond Tucker, a Milford soldier now on leave from duty in France, where he was wounded, and Miss Florence Esther Royal of Worcester. Tucker but recently arrived in Milford. His bride-to-be is a clerk in one of the stores in Worcester.

DEDICATE SERVICE FLAGS FOR MILFORD SOLDIERS

Milford, May 31.—There was a ceremonial in the office of the Selectmen here in connection with the dedication of two service flags, one each for Sergeant Philip J. Callery, who died in France, and Private Matteo Calsone, who was drowned in the Westfield River. Both men were members of the old Company M, now in the service of the United States. The flags will be hung in the Selectmen's room at the Town Hall. Relatives of both young men were present at the simple service.

SUES B. & M. ROAD FOR DEATHS AT CROSSING

Three suits totalling $21,000 in actions of tort have been filed against the Boston & Maine Railroad by Edwin D. Fletcher of Lowell, as administrator of the estates of Theodore D. Fletcher and Carrie E. Fletcher. It is alleged that on October 21, 1917, while the Fletchers were riding in an automobile in Littleton, they were killed when a train struck the machine they were in at the New Estard grade crossing. The company is also sued for damage done to the automobile.

EAST BOSTON BOY IS INJURED BY AUTO

While crossing Brooks street at Trenton street, East Boston, Isadore Leibovits, six years old, of No. 114 Trenton street, was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Andrew F. Blake of No. 128 Trenton street. Blake picked the boy up and took him to the East Boston Relief Station in his automobile, where he was found to be suffering from severe contusions and abrasions of the arms. Blake reported the accident to the police.

MARRIED THREE YEARS, WOMAN ASKS DIVORCE

Three divorce actions have been filed at the East Cambridge Superior Court. They are:

Mrs. Julia B. Keefe of Malden against Henry W. Keefe of Everett. They were married in Somerville, February 3, 1915. She alleges cruel treatment and asks for the custody of two children.

Mrs. Grace F. Ludden of Somerville against Harold L. Ludden of Lexington. They were married in Somerville, November 11, 1908. She alleges cruel treatment and non-support, and asks for the custody of a minor child.

Mrs. Charlotte G. Galvin of Chelsea against Daniel J. Galvin of Cambridge. She alleges intoxication, cruel treatment and non-support.

Motorcyclists Injured

Randolph, May 31.—As a result of crashing into an automobile while riding a motorcycle on the State highway, Albert E. Leonard of Pond street, Avon, was severely injured about the head, arms and legs and Miss Minnie Dillon of No. 10 Franklin street, Brockton, sustained bruises and possibly a fracture of the jaw.

Filene's—Letting the light in!

THE STOCKING below is an example of the scientific work being done by Filene's in the testing of merchandise. Most merchandise is bought on faith. Much of it is sold on say-so. Many merchants buy and sell all their merchandise on the word of some manufacturer that it is as claimed!

It is bad enough for customers not to be sure what they are buying, but, as we see it, it is doubly bad for stores not to know what they are selling. Yet, this Filene Testing Service is the first important organized step we have heard of toward actually knowing what is in merchandise, how long it will wear, how much it will stand without tearing, whether dyes will run, and other things that both stores and customers should know.

The Filene testing service is one more safeguard that Filene's builds up between its customers and an unsatisfactory purchase!

To military auxiliaries, mothers of soldiers, clubs, etc.

CLUBS, business houses, employees' societies and others have recently come to the Filene Paris Shopping Service and placed orders for gifts for all their members serving our country in France. Included are:

Boston & Albany Railroad Committee on Employees.
Wilson Club of East Dedham.
George H. Morrill Co., Norwood.
1900 Club of Boston.
Lawrence Lodge, No. 163, K. of P.
Charlestown Homemakers and Mothers' Club.
Thistle Club of Lynn.
McElwain Shoe Company.
Division 49, A. O. H., Cambridge.

These organizations place orders with us for gifts, one for each of their members. As you understand, no gifts are sent from here, but the orders are filled in Paris, by our Paris Shopping Service for Soldiers and Sailors, and sent directly from there to the front.

We shall be glad to serve any organizations or individuals in this capacity.

You have seen a blue print of a house? This diagram was taken from a blue print of a Filene stocking.

The price of stockings, of course, has increased tremendously. But it is a real help under the circumstances to know exactly what kind of stockings one is getting

Because all the money that can be spared is needed to win the war, it is very necessary to get the most for the money. This requires accurate knowledge. The stocking shop has had the stockings most in demand analyzed. As you can see by the above reproduction of the results of analysis on the most popular stocking 79S, we do not ask you to be satisfied with a general statement; we can tell you exactly what kind of thread and how strong is used in the cotton top, the silk leg, the heel, the sole, the toe, the silk foot and even the ankle reinforcement.

79S is a Crest Brand silk stocking. It has 21 inches of strong silk; garter top, sole, toe and heel are lisle. Black, white and 65 colors, $1.75.

A HINT: To make your stockings wear longer buy half a size larger than you really need. This saves strain. Rinse out at night as soon as possible after taking off. The small amount of perspiration a stocking takes up in a single day is enough to hurt it if allowed to remain in a few hours.

1. Shetland sweaters, $6.50

A very useful sweater, just warm enough. Open down the front, with long sash and two pockets. Turquoise, yellow, rose, pink.

2. Individual sweaters $18.50

With some women a sweater must be as distinctive and personal as a signet ring. For these the sweater shop has many novelties. One is sketched, pure silk, $18.50.

3. Jersey sweaters $7.50

Athletic women have a leaning to jersey. The sketch shows a Filene sleeveless jersey athletic coat at $7.50. Sleeveless jersey golf coats, in plain colors, $16.75.

4. Slip-overs $6.50

The sketch shows an interesting over-the-head which looks hand-knitted. In zephyr wool, $6.50. Zephyr sleeveless slip-overs, $3.95. Silk slip-overs, $15 and more.

5. Fibre silk sweaters $5.00

Many women prefer fibre sweaters to the pure silk. Fibre silk has a beautiful lustre. The sketch shows a Filene fibre silk slip-on sweater at $5.

—from the famous Filene Machine-Made Dress Shop $1.95 to $12.50 —no higher

Bear in mind that these two good-looking dresses are very typical of the surprising Filene values this shop offers every day:

¶ Sketched at right, simple, pretty vestee-effect dresses of black-and-white satin striped voile. Fresh, neat collars and cuffs of organdie, $5.85.

Lacy frill-and-flower hats, $9.50

$9.50 $9.50

If one cannot graduate or go to commencement exercises, one is certain to find lots of other excuses for wearing such daintily pretty and becoming hats.

There's one (sketched) with entire crown of rose petals, brim of rose colored Georgette under point d'esprit lace frills. The ribbon is turquoise, $9.50.

Other sketch shows one with daisy crown and golden Georgette and ribbon, $9.50.

Many others, each vying with its neighbor for admiration. Those with buttercups, bachelor buttons, Scotch heather or field flowers would have looked equally pretty, we think, in sketches, $9.50.

LITTLE FOLKS SEE ELEPHANTS ON COMMON

Children's Carnival Guests at Shepard Stores Are Given a Rare Treat

Eyes and starry with wonder and excitement and treble voices shrill with delight, hundreds of little children with their mothers and fathers, watched the trick elephants from the Barnum & Bailey circus go through their repertoire for the Shepard stores children's carnival.

Boston Common is getting used to strange sights in those days, but one of the most novel yet was the spectacular performance of "Babe and Albert."

"Babe," eighty years young, came forth and made her bow to the public, a trick that she hasn't been asked to do for eighteen years. Albert showed how gentle he could be by crouching down on his trainer, Mr. Harry J. Mooney, and walking over him without leaving so much as a scratch. Albert did many other things for the children, who again and again called for the big creature that stands ten feet above ground and weighs 4½ tons. He is the most skilful of all the elephants in the circus.

When Mother Goose and all her companions troopepd from the Shepard stores across the street and entered the ring to sit high ol Alberts's back and to perform other feats.

This children's carnival that has been going on all the week at the Shepard stores is the first thing of its kind that has ever been conducted by a Boston mercantile establishment. Under the direction of Miss Nan Gurney, who is "Mrs. Mother Goose," the carnical has attracted hundreds of children every day. Today, in spite of the rain, children from in and out of town, by ones and twos and in whole kindergartens, turned out to see the animals that have taken up their quarters in the store, and more especially the big elephants on the Common.

SEEKS TO DIVORCE WIFE FOR CRUELTY

Emma Gene Smith of Brookline is being sued for divorce by her husband, Edward C. Smith. He alleges she was cruel towards him from November 1, 1912, to April 30, 1918. They have not lived together since the latter date, it is said.

The Smiths were married September 24, 1912, at Boston, and they lived in Brookline until their separation. The court has ordered Mr. Smith to pay his wife $30 a week alimony pending the trial of his suit.

PRINCESS PATRICIA CHEERED BY ARMY MEN

London, May 31.—"Oh, you Pat," shouted hundreds of fans at the army and navy baseball game at Stanford Bridge when Princess Patricia appeared on the field. The Princess shook hands with the captains and men on the teams. She was escorted to her seat by General Biddle.

AUTOISTS DISAPPEAR AFTER KILLING MAN

Portland, Me., May 31.—William Molette of Biddeford, thirty-five years old, died in the Maine General Hospital from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile half an hour earlier. The police are searching for two young men in a touring car said to be licensed to Robert Goode of Augusta. He drove away after helping carry the victim into a doctor's office.

STOCK MARKET ECHO OF WAR CONDITIONS

The uncertainty of the situation abroad was reflected in the New York stock market, which opened weak and remained so. U. S. Steel, sold ex-dividend 4¼, opened 2,500 shares 98¾ to 98⅞, rose to 99⅜, then fell back to 97, for a net loss of 2⅝ points.

Among stocks selling ex-dividend were American Sugar 2½ per cent., Southern Pacific $1.50 and Union Pacific 2½ per cent. Bethlehem Steel B opened at 78¾: After touching 79 it dropped to 77⅝. Crucible Steel opened unchanged and later sold off 1½ at 60⅛.

Baldwin Locomotive opened off an ⅛ at 82, rallied to 82¼, then declined to 80, off 2⅛.

Coppers were firm but not active. The movement in rails was mostly confined to Reading, which sold down to 86¼, off 1; New Haven, 42⅞, off 1⅛; Union Pacific was strong, opening up a point at 22, but afterwards losing part of its gain. Anaconda opened 62½, up ¼; and Utah Copper, 77⅝ up ⅛.

The marine issues were weak, the preferred falling to 93⅝, off 1⅝.

Among stocks to show losses of a point or more were: American Sumatra Tobacco, 127¾; Atlantic Gulf, 103; Distillers Securities, 55; Midvale Steel, 46¾; Studebaker, 39; Industrial Alcohol, 117⅜, and St. Paul, 43⅛.

The local market followed New York. Boston Elevated opened at 75, and after losing a fraction sold at 75½, up ½.

Boston & Maine opened unchanged; New Haven off ½ at 43½. In the second hour it was off 1 point at 43.

Both issues of Massachusetts Electrics were weak. Island Oil was off ¼ at 4⅝. Coppers were inactive.

After sinking to lower levels stocks rallied. Rock Island at 23¼ was up ⅞; Missouri Pacific at 23¾ was up ⅜, being exceptions to the general list. Boston Elevated after selling at 76, fell back to 75; Massachusetts Electric preferred gained a point to 28½, and Boston & Maine lost one at 32½.

BLAME AUTOIST FOR FATAL FIRE IN BAKERY

Ross, Chauffeur, Held Criminally Liable at Inquest in Brookline Today

Robert R. Ross, chauffeur for the Blewett Baking Company, whose bakery in Winchester street, Brookline, was destroyed by fire on the night of April 25, was found criminally responsible in an inquest filed at Dedham today, for the deaths of Richard Huefner and Joseph Silveria, two of the six employes who perished.

Judge Rollins of the Brookline court, who held the inquest, found Ross not responsible for the other four fire deaths.

It happened that Ross went on trial before Judge Perkins in the Brookline court today on the police charge of manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Huefner and Silveria. The police allege that he was criminally negligent in running his automobile into a heated part of the bakery premises, so that the machine back-fired, resulting in an explosion. Fifteen witnesses were on hand. Two workmen, among the early witnesses, testified that they heard a noise and that the fire followed quickly.

BUY GOLDEN BREAD AND CAKE, URGES ENDICOTT

"Ask for the golden bread and cake made out of corn meal and thus save your money and wheat for the soldiers," is the appeal of State Food Administrator Endicott today. "Corn meal is cheaper than wheat because there is more of it in the State," he continued. "We have arranged for a big supply which is coming in daily so that there is enough for every housewife, baker and hotel to use it instead of wheat."

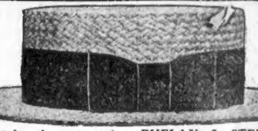

WORKMEN'S CIRCLE TO HAVE STORE CHAIN

Springfield, May 31.—The Independent Workmen's Circle, composed mostly of Jews residing in the metropolitan Boston voted at their twelfth annual convention here today to appropriate 25,000 for the establishment of a chain of food stores and food production centres under a plan for a stock company for members only, presented by General Secretary Samuel Egdall of Boston. Egdall reported about $10,000 of the stock has already been pledged.

Daniels— the Man Who Came Through

Making fun of our own Navy was, not so very long ago, the great American sport.

Whenever a little editor or cartoonist ran entirely out of ideas, he had only to devise a jibe at the Secretary of the Navy—and everybody would laugh bitterly.

The hue-and-cry of disgruntled officers and petty politicians spread into a great public misunderstanding; few men in office have faced the parrotlike, unreasoning hostility that everywhere assailed Mr. Daniels.

Fortunately for America, however, its Secretary of the Navy chose to devote his energy to the defense of his country rather than the defense of himself. As a result, the United States Navy today stands second only to Great Britain, and is within sight of becoming the greatest sea power in the world.

Secretary Daniels has at last broken his own rule. For Hearst's Magazine he has personally written a stirring statement on the New Navy.

Every real American—every lover of fair play—every admirer of courage and efficiency—will appreciate this opportunity to set himself right on the real facts about our magnificent Navy.

WILSON DRIVES FIRST RIVET IN KEEL

President Officially Starts Work in Virginia Company Shipbuilding Yard

Alexandria, May 31.—President Wilson drove the first rivet in the keel of the first big steel ship to be built at the yard of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, and he did a workmanlike job.

Only ninety-one days ago the site of the yard was entirely barren. Today there are ways for a dozen 9,600-ton ships, all under contract for the Shipping Board. A crowd of several thousand, including Shipping Board members, Senators Martin of Virginia, Fletcher of Florida, Speaker Clark and ex-Speaker Cannon attended the exercises.

CHEER PRESIDENT.

The workers and guests gave a great cheer as the President arrived. He walked straight over to the pneumatic rivet machine, took it up and it he knew just how. The pounding of the rivet took just a fraction of a minute and the President straightened up smiling. He made no speech but informally congratulated officials of the company on their speedy program.

William Jamieson, the workman who held the butt against which the Presidential rivet gun held its tune, is authority for the statement that the bolt was fastened steadily and true. Jamieson was a trifle flustered at having had the President for his partner, but he said he knew a good workman when he saw one and the President was it. He had to stand a good bit of joshing from his mates.

MRS. WILSON NAMES BOAT.

The rattle of the pneumatic hammer mingled with a tune from the local band and the shrill of the ship yard whistle.

A great part of the crowd were workmen employed in the yard. They gave the President another big-hurray when his half minute job was done. For 15 minutes or so after the rivet was driven crowds gathered around to look at it and feel it.

Mrs. Wilson was an interested spectator of her husband's prowess as a ship builder. She named the vessel to be the Gunston Hall.

SAYS RED CROSS DRIVE IS SHOT AT GERMANY

Mineola, L. I., May 31.—"The result of the splendid work of the Red Cross during last week's drive was a shot that will startle Germany," said H. P. Davison, speaking at the dedication of a new house presented to the Nassau Chapter of the Red Cross by Mrs. Davison.

"If there are in the Red Cross those that can carry a gun," he added, "we want them to withdraw from it and shoulder the gun. But as for the rest, every man and woman in the ranks of the Red Cross is doing work just as important and as necessary as the man carrying a gun."

MURNANE, M'MILLIN HONORED BY WRITERS

"Tim" Murnane, the "Silver King," and R. E. McMillin, whose stories on sport in the AMERICAN became known to the baseball public as "Casco," were remembered yesterday by the Boston Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association, who had wreaths placed on their graves. Mr. Murnane is buried in Old Dorchester and Ralph McMillin in North Adams.

"HIGH AND DRY" FULL OF GOOD POINTS

Audience Laughs Heartily at Many Hits and Recalls Actors Frequently

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"High and Dry," a romantic comedy by Lewis B. Ely, was presented for the first time in Boston at the Wilbur Theatre yesterday afternoon. The house was full of people, who laughed heartily at various points, and gave the artists numerous curtain calls.

William P. Orr, a newcomer among stage producers, is the sponsor for this drama, which relates of the lamentable conditions which existed in a small Missouri prohibition town, and shows how these were all corrected by lining the place up in the wet column.

In the early stages of the temperance movement the late Charles Hoyt wrote a very successful comedy entitled "A Temperance Town," in which the hypocrisy of prohibitionists was humorously contrasted with the frailty of the town saloon-keeper.

CANNOT "SEE" OPPOSITION.

It is a curious form of blindness which affects many persons friendly to the liquor traffic, that they are unable to see that their opponents may be sincerely opposed to spirits and do not profit from a jug behind the door.

Mr. Ely in "High and Dry," also has this disease. Most everybody we meet in the first act is addicted to drinking patent medicines and bootleg whisky, while they protest their fondness for prohibition. What he apparently wishes us to deduce from his play is that prohibition does not prohibit, but fosters hypocrisy and the consumption of bad liquor.

The meanness of the townspeople in the first three acts and their generous expansiveness in the last might be attributed to the fact that the town had gone for booze during the third intermission.

The fact is that "High and Dry" smells like propaganda, and it is too bad, because there is plenty of good stuff in the play and it might be a very popular melodrama if it had a theme more likely to please the suburbs than the undesirability of prohibition.

A COMPETENT COMPANY.

Mr. Orr and his manager, J. M. Welch, have chosen a very large and exceedingly competent company. One rarely sees minor roles so admirably performed. The atmosphere of a small country newspaper was very deftly created in the first act and the different village types were most amusingly portrayed.

The villain of the play is the Prohibition leader, who secretly owns a patent medicine, which is mostly bad whisky and which is sanctimoniously tippled throughout the town.

His connection with the booze interests is about to be exposed by a girl journalist who has purchased a half interest in the village newspaper; and after various efforts to buy her off, his hirelings wreck the newspaper plant. This wrecking job is very effectively done. Things seem hopelessly smashed up, and collecting the pieces must keep the carpenter man very busy.

The play appeals to the church and finds its members the same smug crowd with the exception of a sweet old preacher, a role spiritedly played by Lawrence Eddinger. However, the desertion of the dry hose lady assistant exposes his perfidy and the town overthrows him.

EVERYBODY PROSPEROUS.

The last act is one of those apotheosis scenes so popular with theatregoers. The newspaper has been rebuilt and its business offices makes any big city journal look like nothing at all. Everybody is prosperous and happy and the saloons are adorning numerous street corners.

William B. Mack is delightful as the newspaper foreman, and Frank Sheridan's work as the hypocritical Colonel Tramp is well worth watching. Edna Baker as the rather melodramatic heroine is womanly and personally charming.

Pell Trenton, as the slightly bibulous editor, who reforms when love proves to him was satisfactory enough, and Adeline O'Connor as the repentent adventuress nobbed very well. Excellent people in character roles are Esther Howard, Spencer Charters, Edwin Nicander, Viola Harper, Charles Coville, William T. Clarke, George Schaeffer and Cassius Quinby.

Don't Corset —THE— Growing Girl

Too Soon

Most mothers now realize fully the importance of training the youthful figure easily and comfortably toward stylish maturity, rather than impairing the health as well as the figure by corseting too early. This is best proven by the rapidly increasing demand for "H & W" Corset Waists for misses!

These are especially designed and adapted to comfortably support the bust and abdomen, straighten the shoulders and easily train the youthful figure toward a stylish, erect and attractive womanhood.

FACES DENTAL TORTURE TO GET INTO ARMY

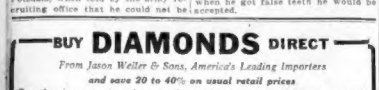

Watertown, N. Y., May 31.—James J. Norris, thirty-three, a resident of Potsdam, when told by the army recruiting office that he could not be accepted for military service because of the condition of his teeth, went at once to a dentist and without "dope" had fifteen roots dug out. Today he again appeared at the recruiting office and was told that when he got false teeth he would be accepted.

BAKER IS FINED $1,000 FOR FOOD VIOLATION

Springfield Concern Penalized by Endicott for Using Too Much White Flour

A fine of $1,000 for violating the "white flour" regulations was imposed today upon the Magaziner's Model Bakery of No. 72 Ferry street, Springfield, by Henry B. Endicott, food administrator.

This is the heaviest penalty dealt out by the food administration for any violation of the law compelling the use of substitutes to save white flour for the American soldiers abroad and for the allies.

Mr. Endicott ordered the bakery to pay the penalty for its unpatriotic acts by sending a check for $250 each to the Springfield branch of the Young Men's Christian Association War Fund, the Knights of Columbus War Fund, the American Red Cross and the Jewish Welfare Board.

A statement on the case was issued by the Food Administration, as follows:

"Mr. Endicott and his licensing division found that the bakery had made and sold bread with an insufficient amount of substitute flours.

"This is one of the heaviest fines thus far imposed by the food administration, and although now closely by the bakers of the State are being watched to prevent abuse of the food administration regulations.

Complaint had been received by the State Food Administration that the product of Magaziner's Model Bakery was suspiciously light. The standard loaves were made before the food regulations were put into force and indicated that too large a proportion of white flour was being used. Mr. Endicott sent his baker inspector, Louis A. Merry, to investigate the circumstances, and the latter followed a batch through." This bread was unlike the previous loaves which had caused the complaint and indicated that in the trial batch, inspected by Merry the proper amounts of substitute were being used.

"A hearing was held at the State House yesterday, when Charles P. Bloome, manager, and one of the partners of the company, was given an opportunity to answer the charges of the Food Administration and its inspector, and the finding was announced today."

TWO POLICE RAIDS IN PROVIDENCE CLEAN-UP

Providence, May 31.—Chief of Police Peter F. Gilmartin's promise to clean up the lodging house district here resulted in a raid today on a lodging house on Central street. Frank Stone, 66, and his wife, Rose A., 65, were arraigned on a charge of maintaining a questionable house and held in $1,000 each.

George S. Clark, Alice Long, George Harris and Clara F. Smith were taken from the house and fined $20 and costs.

The police also raided a lodging house on Pond street and took from there Amanda Renaud, who was held in $1,000. Yvonne Supremant and Mary Picard, arrested at the house, were sentenced to six months. They appealed. Alexander Duhamel was fined $20.

HAS NOTED FRENCHMEN AS GUESTS AT THE POPS

Frederick H. Prince had as his guests at the Pop Concert in Symphony Hall a party of distinguished Frenchmen. They were M. Justin Godart, formerly Under Secretary of State to the Minister of War, formerly vice-president of the Chamber of Deputies and, until last February, in charge of the medical branch of the French army; Major Azan, Major Edouard Risi and Major Locart. Other guests were M. Flammand, the French consul in Boston; Asa P. French, Professor Mercier of Harvard, Professor Barrett Wendell and William C. Endicott. On the arrival of the party the orchestra played La Marseillaise, with the audience standing.

HORRORS! CAN COLLEGE GIRL BE A BOOTLEGGER

Little Rock, Ark., May 31.—When a trunk that evidently had belonged to some college girl arrived here, a small leak between the staves of a barrel of whiskey gave a clue as to its contents. It was found to contain three five-gallon whiskey kegs. Inside the lid was the picture of the Kidd-Key Conservatory of Sherman, Texas. Two free hand drawings of college pennants, one with "K. K." and the other with "H. C." were also found. The trunk came here from El Paso.

DESERTING WIFE GIVEN FIRST HUSBAND'S DOWRY

Madison, Wis., May 31.—Although she deserted him forty-three years ago and then married another man by whom she had nine children, Naomi Davis Bradfield will receive her dower rights in the estate of Levi Davis, of Polk County. The State Supreme Court has ruled that the woman was never divorced from her first husband and therefore never legally married to the second one, so that her claim to the estate of Davis is justified.

FARM LABOR NEEDED.. CALL FOR 2,000 MORE

Boston's drive for farm labor is lagging. As more than 2,000 men and women are needed to establish the city's quota of 2,750, the campaign has been extended to June 3. Here is your opportunity to spend your vacation on a farm. Enrolling stations are located in all of the Liggett stores, Filene's Liberty Bread Shop, Roxbury, Y. M. C. A., Y. M. C. U., settlement houses, social centres and Room 65, City Hall.

WINS BEAUTY CONTEST AS "MISS ROXBURY"

Miss Katherine J. Murray, who was selected out of 300 contestants as most beautiful girl in Roxbury, in contest held at St. Francis De Sales' parish dance.

A dark-eyed slender girl has won the name of "Miss Roxbury," or the beauty title for that district, in a field of 300. This is one of the largest groups of competitors these interesting district contests have so far produced in Greater Boston.

The modest winner is Miss Katherine Ju. Murray. She is twenty-one years old and lives at No. 63 Calumet street in the Parker Hill section of Roxbury.

She was awarded the beauty honor at a dance given by the young women of St. Francis de Sales' parish in St. Francis de Sales Hall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Murray and is a graduate of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School.

DORCHESTER TO CELEBRATE TOMORROW

Tomorrow is "Dorchester Day," and the residents of the district will celebrate the 285th anniversary of its settlement, which took place at Savin Hill by a band of pilgrims who landed from the good ship Mary and John, to seek religious peace on the shores of the New World.

One of the features is the historical exercises, under the auspices of the Dorchester Historical Society, at the William E. Russell School, Columbia Road at 2 o'clock and which consists of singing by a large chorus of pupils from the Mary Hemenway, Mather, Henry L. Pierce and Gilbert Stuart schools, and orchestral selections by the violin class, all under the directions of Dr. Albert C. Mitchell.

A brief address will be made by Edwin J. Lewis, Jr., president of the Dorchester Historical Society. William H. Sayward will deliver an address on "The Dorchester of My Boyhood." Mayor Peters will also speak.

The annual prizes for competitions on Old Dorchester, in which the pupils of the various schools participate will be awarded by Mayor Peters.

At 4 p. m., in Ronan Park, Mt. Ida, the tablet in honor of the late Monsignor Peter Ronan, former pastor of St. Peter's Church, and after whom the park is named, will be unveiled by Miss Gertrude O'Kane.

Among the speakers are Mayor Peters, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, and former Mayor James M. Curley. Joseph F. O'Kane, the chairman, will preside.

In the morning there will be games on the Ronan Park Playground for both girls and boys, and in the afternoon there will be a ball game between the Draper A. A. and the Stoneshurst A. A. In the evening there will be a band concert.

Another feature of the celebration will be the horse races at the Franklin Field Speedway under the direction of the Dorchester Gentlemen's Driving Club.

The ten-mile road race starting from the Dorchester Club at 4 o'clock will include crack runners of Greater Boston, soldiers from Camp Devens and sailors. There will be a band concert on Franklin Field in the evening.

CADETS PARADE AND DINE WITH MAYOR

Spick and span in their blue and white uniforms, the 4's Boston High School Cadet Regiments paraded today through the down-town streets of the city.

The young soldiers, whose appearance each year is an attraction of unusual interest, were reviewed by both Governor McCall and Mayor Peters.

At the close of the parade the cadet officers were entertained at luncheon by Mayor Peters. Luncheon was held at the Hotel Brunswick with the members of the School Committee attending.

The parade included six regiments of three battalions each, each battalion being made up of from four to six companies, each containing not less than fifty cadets. There were also six drum corps containing approximately fifty boys each. The drum corps alone did not furnish all the music, for seven bands accompanied the boys.

In the Governor's reviewing party were Adjutant-General Stevens, General W. B. Emery, Colonel W. C. Rogers and Colonel T. D. Barrows.

The regiments marched in the following order: Fourth Regiment, Fifth Regiment, Sixth Regiment, First Regiment, Second Regiment, Third Regiment.

The First and Third Regiments were composed solidly of English High; Second Regiment from Boston Latin School; Fourth Regiment from Dorchester High School; Fifth Regiment, First Battalion, from Brighton High School; Second Battalion from West Roxbury High School; Third from Hyde Park High School; Sixth Regiment, First Battalion, from East Boston High School; Second Battalion from Charlestown High School; Third Battalion from South Boston High School.

The line of march was: Start at corner of Appleton and Clarendon streets, up Clarendon street to Columbus avenue, along Columbus avenue to Park square, to Boylston street, to Tremont street, along Tremont street to Bromfield, down Bromfield to Washington, to School, up School to Beacon, and along Beacon to the Common.

Get your money's worth

WHEN you buy anything the main idea is to get your money's worth. The amount you pay isn't important; the value you get is the principal thing.

That's one reason for being particular about clothes-buying, especially now when wool is very costly; when the value in clothes is likely to be uncertain.

SAILOR GETS HOME WITH NEWS OF DEATH

Racine, May 31.—Within twelve hours after a notice of his supposed death by drowning in the Mediterranean Sea had been printed in local newspapers Thomas L. Peterson, a sailor in the United States navy, arrived here to spend a furlough with his parents. The story of his death was received by papers through a young woman who said she obtained her information from a letter.

RECEIVES SON'S LETTER ON DAY HE DIES

Fitchburg, May 31.—Lieutenant Theodore Alfred Wyman, one of the five sons of Mrs. Flora M. Wyman, No. [illegible] Summer street, this city, was killed in an aeroplane accident in England on the same day that his mother received a cheerful letter from him. He wrote that he was happy because he had [illegible] his wings and expected to be [illegible] in France soon.

Mrs. Wyman, who was overcome, [illegible] received [illegible] from [illegible] Minister of the [illegible] Air [illegible]:

"[illegible] to inform you that Lieutenant Theodore Wyman was killed in aero accident in England May [illegible]. We express our sympathy."

Young Wyman, who was twenty-five years old, was graduated from Fitchburg High School in 1909 and from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 19[illegible].

TRIED TO JOIN CAVALRY.

He endeavored to get into the United States army soon after war was declared and took examinations for a commission in the cavalry branch. While waiting to hear from Washington he took a trip to Canada and applied for a commission in the Royal Flying Corps, in which he was accepted August 1. Later he was informed that he had been commissioned a lieutenant in the United States army but decided to remain in the British service, believing that it would not be right for him to accept the United States commission after having accepted the appointment in Canada.

Lieutenant Wyman went to England in January and successfully passed the tests in the ground and air school.

FIVE SONS IN SERVICE

The whole city mourns for him and sympathy for the family is widespread. The Wymans have five sons in the service. Lieutenant Theodore, Lieutenant Philip and Franklin H. [illegible] in the United States air service, Kendall, an army ambulance driver, and Donald, the "baby" of the family, who recently joined the Royal Flying Corps.

The local exemption board refused to allow the sixth son, Mark, to join the colors. He was of draft age but at the initiative of the officials was exempted.

Mrs. Wyman is a prominent Red Cross worker, and in a recent parade led the mothers' division, in which women, carrying service flags for sons in service, marched.

Daring of Airmen in France Is Praised By Boston Surgeon

Dr. Richard H. Miller of the Massachusetts and other hospitals in Boston and vicinity, now with an artillery medical corps unit in France, writes that the daring and skill of aviators in battles in the air and the flash and roar of the big guns constitutes a wonderful experience. He says:

"We have been having cool weather, but we are very comfortably fixed, though we have been living in the sides of hills and underground. At times there are bursts of firing and at other times one would never know, save from the appearance of the country, that a war is in progress.

"There is always quite a number of captive balloons around. About an hour ago, right near here, a Boche plane suddenly swooped down upon a balloon out of [illegible] and dropped an incendiary bomb on top of it, setting it afire, and then soared off safely into the clouds.

"The balloon burst into flames and the balloonists jumped out in parachutes. So far as I know they landed safely. It was a daring thing and a wonderful trick. For daring and skill there is not much difference between the two sides.

WOODEN OPERATING TABLE

"I am sitting in my little underground poste de secours and have been making a wooden operating table. It would look pretty crude in a hospital at home, but it looks pretty good to us.

"Last night we had quite a bit of excitement considering the quiet sector in which we are. I was standing alone outside our cave, in the moonlight, when suddenly, just across the little valley in our front yard, so to speak, there were several tremendous explosions with fountains of flame about twenty feet high. The Germans had shelled one of our batteries. Immediately, in the resulting stillness, there came the [illegible] clanking and clanging of a gong which is the signal that a gas shell attack is coming. It means that all are to put on the gas masks and let down the gas proof curtains to the dugouts.

"About the same time numerous rockets were sent up at our left and the hum of aeroplanes was heard overhead. A few minutes later there were tremendous explosions and bright flashes somewhere in the rear, searchlights playing over the sky, machine guns banging like giant woodpeckers and little flashes high in the sky, where the anti-aircraft shells and shrapnel were exploding, trying to hit some of the Germans. We also could hear German and French machine guns away up in the air, shooting at each other from aeroplanes.

CURIOSITY FATAL.

"The more I see of this life the more I am impressed with the truth of the old saying that "curiosity killed a cat." If you can curb your curiosity and stay under cover when you should your chances of getting hit are not very great.

"The day before yesterday, in the morning, I saw a wonderful sight. We were going to spring a surprise attack at 6 o'clock, preceded by and accompanied by artillery. I was out on a high hill at 5.45 o'clock. It was dark though just beginning to [illegible] in the east. At 5.55 to the very second twenty-four batteries, ninety-six guns in all, crashed and roared as one—on the right and the left, in the front and the rear. For three-quarters of an hour they kept it up, sending out shells right over our heads. It was flash, flash, flash and roar, roar, roar everywhere. I never dreamed of witnessing such a wonderful sight.

"I have [illegible] a wonderful experience and would not have missed it for millions. I would infinitely rather be where I am than in some staff job in headquarters at Paris or any place like that."

Chuck West of Holyoke proved himself an able substitute for Walter Butler of Revere, by outpointing Dave Powers, Malden's willing sorrel-top, in the feature ten-round bout of the all-star holiday show at the Commercial A. C.

West was entirely too clever, ditto fast, for Powers. He almost invariably beat Dave to the punch and never failed to make the best of an opening.

"So I challenged him," Gotch said, in relating to me some years later the details of that great match with Archer. "At first Archer paid no attention … He was seeking … publicity for the affair as was possible. Also he had another thought in mind. It was to make me think that by refusing to notice my challenges it was an indication that he feared me. He thought that if I got to thinking along those lines he would find it easy to hook me for a good side bet.

"At last Archer announced that he would wrestle me but stipulated that the match was to be the best two falls out of three and for a $5,000 side bet.

"I guess I knocked some of the wind out of Archer when I announced immediately afterward that I would wrestle for $10,000 a side if he was willing.

"And he was—oh! how willing. Archer considered me a lemon and counted my $10,000 as his own on the very day the bets were posted."

The bout took place August 24, … in Dawson City before a record crowd for the Klondike. Miners came from … hundreds of miles away to witness the match.

… the most … I … to put him down … in the quickest way possible," related Gotch. "I roughed him around the ring and after 18 minutes of playing with him I decided I had given the crowd a fair enough run for their money for the first fall, at least. So I dropped him to the floor and pinned his shoulders to the mat.

ONE FALL WAS ENOUGH.

"That was enough for Archer. He forgot all about the 'best two falls out of three' arrangement, one fall was enough. He announced that he was through and jumped through the ropes, went to his dressing room, got into his clothes and was on his way.

"The crowd that had bet on me went … wild when it saw Archer running out of the second fall. A rain of bags containing pure gold dust, fell into the ring, mixed occasionally with a hail of silver dollars and gold pieces.

"Those boys were 'splitting' their winnings with me. When I counted up the donations and added to that sum the side bet of $10,000 which I had won, I found that the bout netted me $18,640."

Gotch couldn't find any opponents in the Klondike after that who wanted to bet with him on a straight fall. So he put on … in Dawson City, offering to forfeit $… to any man he couldn't throw in fifteen … Many tried for the prize but none got it.

OFF DAY IN SCHEDULE FOR HUB

After Slicing Holiday Bill With Griffs, Sox Leave for West —Braves Coming Home

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston's baseball populace, all stirred up over the pennant drive of the Sox, and the startling climb of the Braves, had a breathing spell today.

The American league leaders were entraining for Detroit and the western series, while the Haughton Hopes were winding up a star-spangled trip over in Brooklyn.

Our Boston teams have been some noises in their respective leagues. The Red Sox, in their home stand, won thirteen games and lost a mere four. The National long shots have collected thirteen scalps, and been beaten six times. Which is some good record for any kind of a team.

OPEN TRIP IN DETROIT.

The Barrow brigade starts in tomorrow on the Tigers, and then tackles all the Westerners in order. The Tener representatives of the wild and wooly are meantime being entertained hereabout at the Home of Big Things, which finally seems to have a chance of living up to its pretentious title.

The Sox's long Boston visit concluded with an even break with the Senators. Hubert Leonard got back to something like his real pitching form and won the morning game, 8 to 1.

Dick McCabe was given his initial opportunity in front of some 10,000 fans in the afternoon. He was whipped, 4 to 0.

P'SHAW! SHAW TOO GOOD.

As Shaw, for the hostiles, was practically unhittable, it didn't make much difference what the new performer did, anyhow. He was in a lot of trouble during the fray, but [illegible] ly with a few runs [illegible] work on.

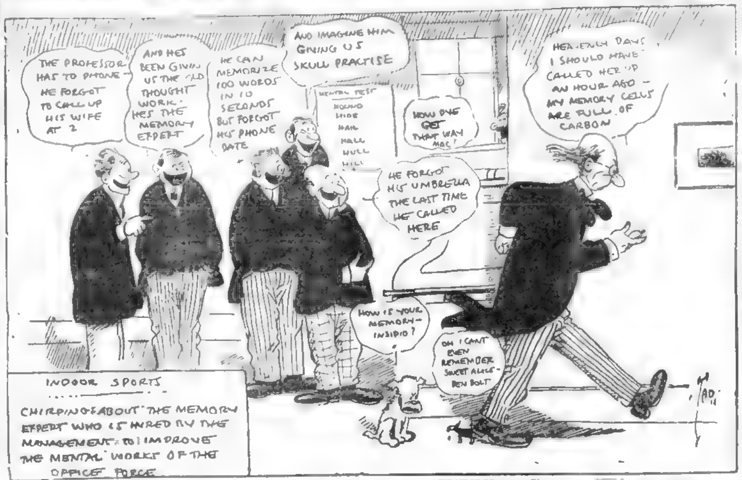

The day was signalized mostly by the reappearance of Battering Babe Ruth. He hove into view in the eighth round of the afternoon pastime, and busted out a long fly to centre field.

He's just as well as ever and due to resume [illegible] on the morrow in [illegible] Straits.

BRAVES WIND UP STAY WITH ROBINS

Stallings Anxious to Land Final Brooklyn Game Before Home Coming of Team

Brooklyn, May 31.—The speedy-traveling Braves, back on their 14 strike, claims Skipper Stallings, a statement which Fred Mitchell, Jack Hendricks, Christie Mathewson, Hugo Bezdek and Wilbert Robinson will doubtless substantiate, judging by the way the Boston outfit has bombarded their respective nines the [illegible] several weeks, were to wind up the three-day stay in Flatbush this afternoon.

The Braves kept up their rapid [illegible] yesterday, taking two falls out of the Robins in the double-header in Ebbets Field. Art Nehf started winning from Grimes, Marquard ending [illegible]. Next Bunny Hearn, [illegible] southpaw, vanquished Grimes, Marquard again working in the [illegible] rounds, 4-3.

A HURRAH WINDUP.

Both games were battles royal, as the tallies indicate. The Braves won out in the opener by putting over a run in the eighth frame, after the two teams had been in a 1-1 deadlock from the third canto on, while in the afterpiece a rousing Brooklyn rally was squelched in the nick of time.

The Braves were leading, 4-1, when [illegible] faced Hearn in the [illegible] [illegible] were quickly put over, but [illegible] demise took place before any additional damage was done.

[illegible] single and Wickland's [illegible] gave the Braves a run in the [illegible] of the maiden scrap. The Robins tied it up in the third, the [illegible] from hits by Miller and [illegible] and Nehf's wild pitch.

Herzog opened the eighth with a bunt, and reached first in safety when Johnston booted it. The ex-Giant then swiped second, and came in on Wickland's rousing triple to deep right-centre.

O'MARA IS OBLIGING.

The second game went 0-0 for two rounds. In the third Henry reached first on O'Mara's wide chuck to Johnston. Hearn laid down the desired sacrifice and his battery mate moved up [illegible]. After Rawlings flied to [illegible] Herzog got on when O'Mara fumbled, and Powell's one-shot registered Henry.

With one down in the seventh, Konetchy, Rehg and Henry bunched singles and, helped along by O'Mara's [illegible] of a return from Hickman, the [illegible] got two runs across.

Brooklyn came back with a counter in its section of the frame. O'Mara reached first when Herzog fumbled his roller and made the circuit on [illegible] by Hickman and Johnston.

[illegible] Braves tallied their fourth run [illegible] Powell was passed, [illegible] on Wickland's sacrifice [illegible] up to third on Smith's safe hit and came in when Konetchy [illegible] Smith at second.

The [illegible] wound up against [illegible] fashion. They got [illegible] in a jiffy, and with the [illegible]. Pinch-hitter Mack [illegible] Stallings who [illegible] and [illegible] O'Mara [illegible] at the plate when he tried to [illegible] home.

Damon Runyon Warns Circuit to Watch Out for Braves

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, May 31.—G. Tweedy Stallings, the Jones County planter, has a club not unlike his club of 1914, and it is quite conceivable that he may carry through another drive such as the one he put over that year—assuming, of course, that there is to be any more baseball at all after July.

Yes, this statement is from the same authority which declared on the occasion of Stallings' first visit here a few weeks ago that he had the worst looking ball club that had been seen on any field in many moons. We said something to the same effect about his 1914 club in the early days of that season.

In some respects the present Braves are better than the 1914 Braves. They lack, however, that incomparable pitching trio, Rudolph, Tyler and James. Konetchy is probably a better first baseman than the broad beamed Charley Schmidt of 1914. Herzog is about as good as the Johnny Evers of that period and much the same style of player.

Rawlings does not compare with Maranville, but J. Carlisle Smith at third is hitting even better than he did in '14. And it must be remembered that Smith did not play in the Fall series anyway. Charley Deal guarded that post when Smith broke his leg.

The outfield of today and the outfield of 1914 are about a stand-off. In 1914 Stallings used a variety of outfielders including Leslie Mann, Josh DeVore, Connolly, Whitted and others. Wickland, Kelly and Powell are about as good, though none of them are stars.

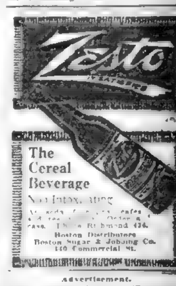

Behind the bat it is another stand-off between Arthur Wilson and Hank Gowdy, both graduates of the McGraw school, though it's doubtful if Arthur, or anybody else, will ever hit as well in the pinches as the immortal Hankus.

The Four of Hearts

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

Milton Confesses to Cynthia That He Loved Her at First Sight and She Hears Him Happily

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LXII

IN [illegible] and Milton [illegible] each other, [illegible]

"I [illegible] believe all the things [illegible] have happened," Cynthia said with a [illegible] laugh.

"Some of them were bound to happen," Milton declared. "Dora was wrong in thinking that she cared enough about me to marry me. She is at heart too honest to live a falsehood, so she did the square thing and confessed the truth before it was too late. I honor her for it."

Cynthia spoke timidly. "Would you consider me presumptuous, Milton, if I say that I am sorry for you, and that I think you are bearing it very bravely?"

"Presumptuous!" Milton repeated. "You could never be that, Cynthia. But I am not 'bearing it bravely,' as you say, for I am not a bit unhappy. Dora is still my friend, you see."

"Yes," Cynthia admitted, "but, while that is a comfort, it hardly compensates a man for losing the woman he loves."

"But I do not love Dora."

"Why, Milton," she protested. "It is not like you to say a thing like that."

"Then it is not like me to tell the truth," he argued. "But in this case I am speaking the truth. I have always been fond of Dora—ever since we went to dancing class together as kids. I have taken her and her affection as naturally as I would had she been my sister. [illegible] where we got the wrong idea. We mistook affection for love."

"[illegible] must have believed you wanted to marry her when you became engaged to her," Cynthia reminded him.

"I [illegible] I had never known then what [illegible]," he answered.

When Cynthia did not speak he continued. "We had been engaged, Dora and I, for some weeks when I first met the only woman I have ever loved. I saw her then but for a few minutes, Cynthia. I was in a hotel in Chicago."

"Oh!"

"Didn't You Guess?"

[illegible]

"You must [illegible] pleased [illegible] this Cynthia," he [illegible] you suspect it?"

"I never [illegible] of [illegible] if I could help [illegible]."

"Well, I tried [illegible] and couldn't," he averred. "I saw you in the dining-room that night, and I said so much about you to Stewart, who was [illegible] that he made fun of me and reminded me that I was an engaged man. Then I made you speak to me later by stepping right in front of [illegible] and starting you in dropping your letter. [illegible]

[illegible]

"You will not have to wait," she said softly, "because I have already learned to love you."

A Good Memory

"You have the bluest eyes I ever saw," she [illegible] after irrelevantly. "I remember perfectly how [illegible] the first time I saw [illegible] that evening in Chicago."

"[illegible] remember as much as that about that meeting," Milton queried. "Do you really remember all about it?"

"Of course I do," she teased. "Do you suppose that you are the only one who has any memory?"

"[illegible] darling," he sighed contentedly. "[illegible] you see now—[illegible] understand that after [illegible] there is such a thing as love at first sight?"

"Yes, I know it now," she admitted.

"I wonder what Dora will say," Cynthia remarked after a pause. "Of course, she will be glad, in a way."

"She will be very glad," Milton affirmed. "Is it possible that you have not seen, Cynthia, that she and Stewart are in love with each other?"

[illegible] started to her feet. [illegible] How [illegible] I have been [illegible] I never suspected it. But I can see it now, when I come to think back. But I did not see until now."

"[illegible] have been blind," the man said. "I found it out long ago—but never told. Dora will tell [illegible]."

The Latest in Godmothers

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service

GODMOTHERS once were little old creatures who lifted spangled veils over the carven cradles of new babies and gave them gifts from a [illegible] "Good temper, Beauty, Sweet tongue, A-chest-of-jewels-[illegible]-to-her-feet, That-every-one-should-love-her, Happi[illegible]." [illegible] later were just the dear women and girls who named [illegible] friends' babies, cuddled and bragged of them, hoped for them [illegible] them, even after their own mas and pas were dead.

[illegible] Godmother, "Marraine," is a woman or ardent girl, in England [illegible] America, whose bit suddenly grows too little, and despicable to her, no matter how 'normous it looks to other patriots, and who marches her out and adopts a troop of the "boys" at the front! Some out of that great army who are giving their lives truly, with their eyes fixed gayly and hopefully in the dream ones of a woman not flesh and blood—Liberty, their only Mother the Land they fight for, their only father, Uncle Sam.

The knightly army of orphan men "boys," too, like somebody's grown-up babies, who turn away when the mailsack thuds down, who [illegible] pretend not to care and take up a hole in the belt around their [illegible]. Once there were more of them, in the new days of the war. And now, thanks be to the little Godmother—gray she may be or golden haired, what does a 'dopted fighter care?—if somewhere he sits lonely without a letter from "home" or a pot o' jam, it must be his own fault for not saying good and loud, "Wanted—a Godmother, by a brave young soldier!"

For the little Godmother is a lady of a familee now. Maybe her husband buys the wool that she knits, and the sweets that she sends, and adds a postscript on the letter she writes to Jimmy and John and Jack and Jerry. Maybe she takes from a hoarded store of money and love, because she started with her own ONE boy, rich in his mother's love, and has plenty to go round to the boys that the ONE boy knows.

Maybe she earns the money that goes lovingly into every loop and letter—and is a little old maid. Maybe she earns the money and ISN'T a little old maid, but a girl with curls on her neck-nape, the fetchingest frock and silken ankles and a foolish little hat. Ne'mind, her cake is just as good and her knitting as warm, as even, with all her frosting and cream!

Behol' the latest thing in Godmothers—a dainty young girl with a half-dozen grown—and grateful—boys at the front!

Turning Out Successes

A SUGGESTION FOR EVERY PARENT

Make Your Boy Keep Trying Until He Finds the Work That Interests Him, and Don't Be Discouraged

By William A. McKeever

(One of the nation's best-known sociological writers.)

"WHAT is the matter with our fifteen-year-old boy? Is he different from others, or do I fail to understand him? I am very anxious to have him learn to work. So last Summer I got him two different jobs, one in a box factory and one in a garage, and he failed in both. Both employers seemed to think lack of interest was the cause of the failure." So writes a troubled father, and there are thousands of others like [illegible].

The first point in re[illegible] keep trying [illegible] boy out at different [illegible]. There is something which [illegible] and awaken his interest. The fact that he is fond of [illegible] and knows all the makes at sight does not at all indicate that he will ever be interested in washing or repairing cars. I have just learned of a case of this very nature of a boy who failed in a garage and was then sent for a trial out on a big farm, where his interest awakened with a bound. That was last Summer, and now he is [illegible] to the farm in happy anticipation of another Summer there.

Be careful not to speak to your boy discouragingly. Be patient with his disappointments and deal frankly in every way with him. Tell him that you are trying him out and that you will put together cheerfully till some delightful task is found. You may have to change a dozen times.

Do not count a boy's so-called failures as a complete loss of time. It helps him to learn what he is not as well as what he is. Then every time he tries a new job honestly he acquires some considerable experience in dealing with people in a business way.

He is growing an inner life through experience, much of which must outwardly seem a failure. Also he is all the while learning to know the different types of personalities which are constantly jostling one another in the business world.

It may be that you are making a leaner of your boy, doing too much thinking for him and babying him in various ways. Maybe [illegible] work is best for the fifteen-year-old. Have [illegible] tries [illegible] or working [illegible]. A Summer course [illegible] farm—handling livestock, plowing, haying, harvesting and dairying. This would be worth more to your boy than any [illegible] year in the public schools [illegible] "stick."

But my special plea here is for fatherly patience and forbearance. Omit scolding, nagging and fault finding.

Induce your boy to go through one hundred try out industrial occupations if necessary in order to get his true measure of industrial interest and well being. When you finally discover the place where "his heart is made glad by the work of the day" you may feel certain that your quest is ended.

There is joy in every piece of honest work. Some one soul longs for it. Search from A to Z, if need be, and this finally open up a new life for your son. There is no more certain foundation for his future success as a patient workman, as a man of affairs, as a happy citizen of this busy Commonwealth.

So come on, fathers, all together now. Let us journey through all the natural trials and blunders with the boy and slowly turn his so-called failure into a glorious highway of success.

Women's War Work in Washington

The support of 22,000,000 school children in 18,000,000 homes was promised by Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford in her address at the conference of American lecturers at the Washington Hotel in Washington.

"When you reach the school children," said Mrs. Bradford, "you reach almost every home in the United States, and every school within the public school system of the country has announced its willingness to be used by the government. When you realize that of the 700,000 teachers the majority are women, you see what an important field for work has been put in the hands of women.

"Sure he has," answered Mrs. Hopkins.

BAKED CHOCOLATE POTATO PUDDING

Mashed potatoes, 1 cup; corn syrup, 1¼ cups (or corn syrup, ¾ cup and maple syrup or honey), ½ cup; fat, ¼ cup; milk, 2 tablespoons; egg, 1; cinnamon, 1 teaspoon; chopped walnuts, ½ cup; barley flour, 1 cup; cornmeal, ¼ cup; baking powder, 4 teaspoons; chocolate, melted, 1 square; cloves, ⅛ teaspoon; salt, ¼ teaspoon.

Add the sweetening, eggs and milk to the potato. Sift all the dry ingredients and add them to the first mixture. Add melted fat and nuts. Add chocolate, melted over hot water. Beat well. Bake in greased shallow pan about twenty-five minutes [illegible]. Serve with cream or pudding sauce.

Yield, 7 servings.

POTATO CORNMEAL CRISPS.

Mashed potatoes, ½ cup; cornmeal, [illegible] cup; salt, [illegible] teaspoon; fat, 1 tablespoon.

Sift together the dry ingredients, put in the fat, add mashed potatoes, making a dough which can be rolled very thin. Cut into diamonds and bake in a quick oven until golden brown. If desired, after rolling out the dough, sprinkle with grated cheese and paprika, making cheese straws.

Yield, 50 wafers, 2 in. by 2 in.

PAPRIKOSH (Fish and Potato).

Potatoes, diced, 2 cups; fish (haddock or other fish), ½ pound; onion, sliced, 2 tablespoons; parsley, chopped, 2 teaspoons; fat or olive oil, 2 tablespoons; salt, ½ teaspoon; paprika, ½ teaspoon; water, 1½ cups.

Brown onion in fat, add diced potatoes and brown. Add fish, boned and cut into small bits. Mix well together, add parsley, seasonings and water, and cook for about twenty minutes. Serve with a garnish of sliced lemon.

Yield, 5 servings.

Men Have Gone Women Are Coming

But It Is the Young or Young Looking Women Who Win

Today the world is overflowing with opportunity for the woman who is capable, active, youthful—or the woman who looks the part. Gray hair, the appearance of age, is passed by. Unfair, yes, but it is a condition which has to be met.

Thousands of women have found a way out by using Q-ban Hair Color Restorer. Not by dyeing their hair because Q-ban is not a dye, but through the natural, gradual way in which it restores the youthful color. Try it if your hair is gray, streaked with gray, or faded. It will do the same for you.

Q-ban has no disagreeable features. It will not rub or wash off or stain the scalp. You can shampoo or wave the hair as usual. It also eradicates dandruff and keeps the hair healthy. Guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded. Easily applied by simply brushing [illegible]

Women in War Work

By Elizabeth Ellam

Many Positions Abroad Are Held by Volunteers Without Pay

MANY women are anxiously seeking a position overseas where they may be doing a patriotic service and still earning just enough to keep themselves. They would like to give their entire service, without money and without price, but they must live and they must have just enough money to keep themselves respectable and to guarantee them a safe passage home.

I wish I might direct these patriotic women to the proper channels and provide each one with just the right patriotic opportunity that she desires, but unfortunately this is impossible. There are some positions overseas, but a great many have been filled by volunteer workers who can give their time, their money, and even help support the organization in whose service they [illegible].

Although the Y. W. C. A. of the country is sending secretaries and organization workers, they are all necessarily trained in this field of [illegible] speak French. The telephone company has enrolled girls in the government service, but they, too, must know and speak French to be of service.

The ordinary American girl with no knowledge of French, no training in any special form of service and nothing to recommend her but her good will, her patriotism and [illegible] is no place for her in over-burdened, crowded France. She must shoulder her burden here at home—do her bit and keep the wheels of industry running smoothly over here.

If you heard Dr. Anna Howard [illegible] you know what she outlined as the duties of American women in the war: to furnish the patriotism and the enthusiasm that sends our boys across the seas to fight and and to send them away with a smile, to keep the home fires burning—coal or no coal—to keep business normal and to buy just enough but not too much, and to conserve the things we are told to conserve by Mr. Hoover. That is what is expected of us—and what we are told we must do. "But," she added, "they don't play any brass bands for us when we are doing it, and they don't make any thrilling speeches, as we do it. But we will do it, just the same."

I have thought this today, after reading this letter:

Dear Miss Ellam: For a long time I have wanted to be a Red Cross nurse, but I have found out that only graduate nurses are eligible. Now, I am not a graduate nurse and can not give three years to the training, but still I want to be a Red Cross nurse. The only thing I have is a good strong body and mind, such as a nurse needs. Is it possible for me to take a special course in any hospital for about three months and then work for the Red Cross? If I cannot take a special course in nursing, will the Red Cross let me work for them in other ways? I mean away from home. Of course I would have to have a little pay, but only enough to live on.

Beverly. R. D. P.

To be a Red Cross nurse one must be a graduate nurse in good standing, registered in the State in which she lives. This is absolutely necessary. There is no three months or special course that will enable you to do nursing of any sort. I have presented your case to Miss Elizabeth Ross, at the National Red Cross headquarters, and I am repeating to you what she told me. It would cost you about $2,000 to go [illegible] capacity for the Red Cross, and such service, of course, would carry no pay. There seems to be no short cut in this training, I am sorry to tell you.

Why not call at the Red Cross headquarters, No. 755 Boylston street, and talk over your ambitions with Miss Ross herself, some day when you are in town? She might suggest some other line of service to you that would appeal to you nearly as much as the nursing.

A letter that is too long to publish comes from "M. L. B." and her sister, in Nahant. They work together for $9 and $10 a week respectively, and they want to leave their work and do government work in a factory, believing there is more opportunity for advancement.

You both have the advantage of being the desired age for workers in munitions factories, where the women are required to be young and strong, and you probably could secure such work if you would apply to the State Free Employment Agency, No. 8 Kneeland street. Women who are inexperienced are paid about $10.50 or something like that a week to begin with. Of course, such work would give you leisure for study at an evening school, as you speak of wanting to do.

However, there is still another side to consider. Where you are at present, you have your wage of $9 a week in addition to your board, your room and your laundry. That is considerable of an item, and probably altogether you have more money at the end of a month than even the well-paid munitions workers. We are told by our President to remain where we are, if we are doing good work and not to disturb labor conditions by jumping into a new and untried field.

My advice to you would be to remain where you are, save your money, study in your room when you have a chance and try to arrange to take private lessons of some teacher in the neighborhood, on what spare time you can manage.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Mercenary Interest

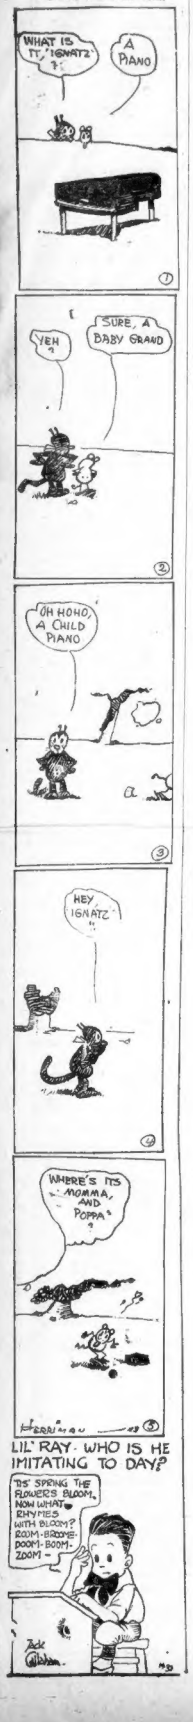

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been friends with "A" for a number of years. In fact the friendship was such that we were looked upon as inseparable. Suddenly, "B" comes along, with the facilities of showing "A" all the good times she conveniently can, excluding "C." "A" accepts all "B's" invitations, never giving a thought to "C's" feelings on being neglected merely for the sake of a good time. Of course, it may be all right, but it has made me feel rather morose, and I wondered whether what I have just related came under "true friendship," or friendship at all. C.

REAL friendship is not a matter of favors given or received. It is based upon affection, congeniality and mutual respect and good faith. As A has failed to prove her fondness and loyalty to you and has idly neglected you for some one else who can give her a better time, you must put her down as a girl who is too frivolous to count upon. Maybe there is nothing worse the matter with her than idle, thoughtless youth, but she lacks fine feelings and real womanly instincts. Don't feel "morose" about it, but recognize that you may have been saved from a graver disappointment by waking up to the fact that you can't count upon A—before you had come to count on her too much! I am sure that you deserve real friends and will make them. The way to have friends is to be one—sympathy, loyalty, generous respect for the other person's freedom as an individual, congeniality, affection—of these is friendship built.

[HOR]SES OWNED BY AMERICAN WIN PRIZES

Boston AMERICAN horses and stables have scored first honors again in the annual Work Horse Parade and stable inspection, adding to similar honors of former years.

The AMERICAN stables in South Boston have been awarded the first prize as the best kept stables in the many inspected by representatives of the Boston Work Horse Relief Association.

E. H. Richards, foreman, and Michael Fadden and Patrick Roache, assistant foremen, have been awarded silver medals by the association. The inspection for the association was made by H. L. Pinkham, who found the place in first-class condition.

KEEPS EYE ON HORSES.

Each year it is a rule of the Boston Workhorse Relief Association to inspect all stables in and about Boston where horses are kept. In submitting reports to the association the inspector takes into consideration the appearance of horses brought to the stable by the drivers, whether in a heated condition or not.

The manners and appearance of the horses, as showing whether they have been handled kindly or roughly are considered; also the bodily conditions of the horses, whether their feet are properly shod, whether the horses are well groomed and so on. Attention is also paid to harness, cleanliness of stable, hay loft and watering troughs, methods of drainage, disposal of manure, bedding in stalls, feeding and coverings for the horses. The AMERICAN stable excelled in all these things.

FIFTEEN PRIZE WINNERS.

In the Work Horse Parade feature the AMERICAN also came in for consideration, as fifteen of the paper's horses carried off first prizes. The horses were in charge of D. Clancy, M. Duggan, Eddie Jones, William Mahoney, John Mulhearn, B. F. Richardson, William Mulloy, Thomas McKee, Leo Leach, L. Morrett, Samuel Pearlman and Charles Wolfe.

A feature of the parade was the farewell appearance of "Babe," a veteran in the service of the AMERICAN delivery department. He started for Red Acre Farm today. He has been pensioned and will spend the rest of his life romping around the green fields. He took with him a first prize blue ribbon.

URGES MAKING OF "COTTAGE CHEESE"

Use of Skimmed Milk Product Will Conserve Food, Says Endicott

More general use of skimmed milk cheese, familiarly known as cottage cheese, among both farm and city people of the nation is being urged by the United States government, both as a measure of personal economy and to aid in the general conservation scheme adopted to save the less perishable supplies for the armed forces in France and in training in this country.

In a statement from the office of the State Food Administrator, Henry B. Endicott, an outline was given of the effort being made by the Washington government along this line, the States being organized by sections and also individually. Of this matter the statement says:

"Cottage cheese is easily made in the home, particularly on the farms where the milk supply is turned into butter and large quantities of skimmed milk result. It also is an economical method of using up skimmed milk in the city home, where the cream has been taken for other household uses.

"It takes its place as a palatable substitute for meat dishes, and as an economical sources of protein and energy. Pound for pound it contains more protein than most cuts of meat and cost for cost, where skimmed milk is purchased for this purpose, it is cheaper than many meats as a source of energy.

"The Department of Agriculture at Washington has issued tables showing that one pound of cottage cheese is equal in protein, the chief material for body building, to 1.27 pounds of sirloin steak, 1.37 pounds of chuck rib beef, 1.46 pounds of fresh ham, 1.58 pounds of loin pork chops, 1.31 pounds of leg of lamb, or 1.37 pounds of breast of veal.

"When one studies these comparative figures, there is an apparent way to help the Government during the war and, perhaps equally important to the householder, reduce materially the cost of living.

"So important does the United States government consider this branch of its work, that in each State women are being trained in dairying and the making use of skimmed milk. A competent woman has been placed in charge of each State who, through county demonstrators, is teaching the wives of farmers along this line. Not only do they thus reduce their own expenses, but in the city markets find a ready outlet through which they may add to the income of the farm.

"Cottage cheese is but one of the many delectable dishes based on the use of milk and, with the price in Boston dropping on Saturday one-half cent per quart, while the costs of all meats are soaring, more general use of milk in the family and at restaurants and cafes is being urged by the administration. Doubling up on milk as a food and beverage means lowering your weekly or monthly food bills."

WOMEN CHAUFFEURS DRIVING ARMY OFFICERS

Washington, May 31.—Equal work is another step ahead of equal rights for women. The quartermaster's department of the army has ousted its male chauffeurs and women now are at the steering wheels of the automobiles used to drive officers to and from the various camps near Washington.

The new duties are not too arduous to cause style to be forgotten. A natty uniform suitable for the work has been adopted. It consists of khaki knickerbockers, Norfolk jacket and a small close fitting hat.

WAR BOARD ADDS 100 TO ENEMY TRADING LIST

Washington, May 31.—Approximately 100 individuals, firms and corporations were added to the enemy trading list by the War Trade Board. The majority of the banned companies are in South American neutral countries, while Morocco, with twenty, has an unusually large representation.

McAdoo Makes Another Move for Democratic Progress

Director-General Takes Over the Express Companies and Ends Their Career of Corruption

Director-General McAdoo, representing the National Government, has taken the express companies. Thus the march of progress goes on. Thus we are catching up with the great nations of the world which, starting a century behind us, overtook us a generation ago, passed us and were fast leaving us far behind in economic, political and social progress.

The war, with its tremendous problems making inefficiency intolerable, has compelled us to follow the example of the other great, progressive countries in taking out of private hands and away from private management those great functions of government which never have been and never can be properly managed by private persons for private profit.

We have taken our railroads and are operating them with noticeable improvement even in so short a time and with such great and extraordinary difficulties as the war conditions have placed upon the government. Now we take our express companies. This is another long step in the right direction. We notice that Secretary McAdoo is credited with having said that the plan of the taking originated with the express companies. We trust that the Government did not pay too much; but even if it did pay too much it was better to have taken them and thus to get rid of their inefficiency and duplication of service once for all than to haggle and dawdle too much over the price. While we haggled over the price the country would have lost, through the waste of private management, more than the difference between what the Government thought was reasonable for the express companies and what the express companies thought was reasonable.

Not the least of the great public benefits which will come from the government operation of our express business will be the loosening of the grip which these companies had on our railroads and upon our politics. The American people would be amazed to know what a source of corruption the American express companies were to our railroads and our public life. Their practice was to buy such a block of stock of a railroad as would give the express company an effective influence in the management of the road and then to obtain from it, through that influence, a contract which robbed both the stockholders and the public.

On the Boston & Maine Railroad alone, for example, the American Express Company, through that kind of manoeuvring, compelled a contract with itself by the terms of which the poor Boston & Maine was losing more than seven hundred thousand dollars a year—or 2% upon its capital stock. The country would be amazed to know the men of good reputation who secretly served these companies—men distinguished in public life, secretly serving express companies on boards of directors and elsewhere.

The AMERICAN understands that the Government is negotiating with the Pullman Car Company to take it out of private hands. It is really a manufacturing company and its evil works are rather the part of its business which it ought never to have engaged in—the practice of leasing its cars to the railroads. This practice led it to assume the same relations with the railroads which the express companies had assumed and to exploit the railroads in very much the same way.

These are but a few of the wheels within wheels of the vast, exploiting machine which constitutes our invisible government that has controlled the American people for the last generation, making our claim to a government of, for and by the people a "thing of laughter, fleers and jeers" to the foreign students of American politics. No wonder the Russian statesmen and democratic reformers look saksance upon American assumption to be the exemplar of democracy.

These Russian scholars and democratic leaders knew America before the present war. If they could come here to America today it would be the greatest boon to democracy and the cause of the allies, for they would see here our real progress toward democracy. They would see our National Government administered for the benefit of the average man, for the masses, for the great majority. They would see Wall street and State street and Market street gnashing its teeth with rage to think that the radicals are managing the war and are converting its lessons into engines of democracy. Having seen such things in America today they would know that the cause of the allies against Germany, under the guidance of President Wilson, is the cause of real, honest democracy and they would be willing to sacrifice something in that cause.

AMONG JOKES, A PUN IS THE HUN

Don't become a "pun bore."

You know fellows of this sort—they begin making puns as soon as they join a party.

Anything and everything and anybody afford them a thought along this line.

Puns are the so-called wit of the weakest minds, the cheapest imitation of humor.

And what of the sort of person who can try to furnish amusement for others from some unfortunate's deformity, whether physical or mental?

True, there are a lot of unthinking people who enjoy this sort of stuff and also consider the punster "funny," but such persons are in his class and worthy of just as much consideration, no more.

Good, clean, sparkling humor is wholesome and we need more of it and a kind and understanding heart.

To make others relax and forget their troubles is a gift, God-given.

To be a "wit," merely, or a punster, keen, quick but unthinking, is below.

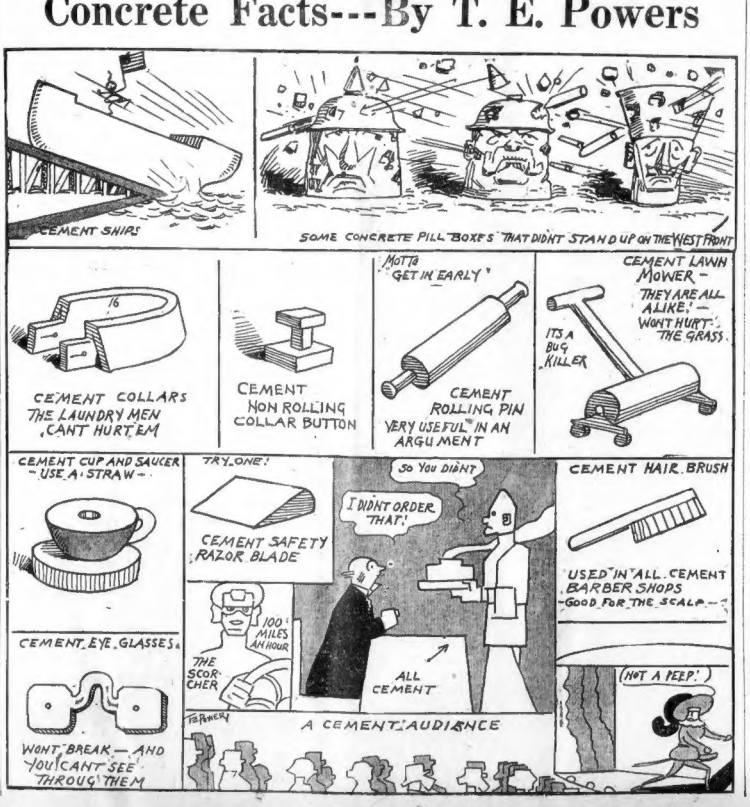

The world needs humorists.

HASHEESH INDUCES IDYLLIC VISIONS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"In a recent article you made mention of hasheesh. I have read about this substance before, and am curious to know exactly what it is and what effect it has on the mind."—Miss R. P. C.

SINCE a knowledge of the effects of hasheesh may lead to useful reflections on the relations of mind and body, a summary statement of what is known on that subject is worth making. Hasheesh is a preparation of Indian hemp, botanically named Cannabis indica, which means the same thing in Latin.

The hemp plant is of the same order as the hop plant. The hemp of commerce, used for rope-making, consists of fibres of this plant, but then there are fibres called hemp which are not hemp, but something resembling hemp.

It Grows Wild

The hemp plant appears to have originated in Asia, where it still grows wild. It is from the wild hemp that hasheesh is procured, in several forms; such as "bhang," consisting of dried leaves and stems that can either be smoked or made up into a confection with sugar, honey, or other sweets; "gauza," made, it is said, exclusively from the lower buds of the female plants; and finally a resin that exudes from the plant something after the manner of opium.

There was a time, after Napoleon invaded Egypt, not only with an army, but with a staff of learned men representing every branch of science and art, in consequence of which his invasion was followed by an immense opening of the eyes, ears and mouths of Europeans to Oriental things, when hasheesh became a recognized hypnotic or narcotic drug used in certain cases by physicians. But I believe that it is no longer thus employed. Certainly no one should ever think of using it except by the advice and under the direction of a physician, and I think it would not be easy to find a reputable doctor who would countenance its use in any case.

The real interest of the subject lies in its relations to the question of bodily influences upon the mind. There is almost universal testimony that hasheesh produces dreams or illusions of a peculiarly splendid and captivating quality. The dreamer seems to himself to be in a kind of paradise while the effects of the drug continue.

Compare this with the ordinary and familiar influences of outer nature upon mental moods. A susceptible person may be thrown into an ecstacy of delight by a musical composition, or by a beautiful landscape, or by the fragrance of a garden, and all of these things induce waking dreams in which the mind is led far away from reality, and imbued with a degree of confidence, and an apparent capacity, not normal to it.

Glorious Deed

Yielding to such influences, one becomes, for the time being, the hero of some glorious deed or achievement, or the possessor of the power to right some great wrong or injustice, or a benignant lover of all mankind, or the chief personage in an idyl. Every one of us knows days when the combination of all nature's influences, through the air, the sunshine, the winds, the clouds, the flowers, makes a stimulant for the mind that lifts it into the empyrean. In such moods we feel a unity with nature which admits no suggestion of any division in ourselves. It does not occur to us to wonder that material things outside us should be able thus to mould our inner mental life.

The Silent Patriots

To the Service Mothers.

By Ray W. Frohman

OH bearers of God's alchemy
Of our embattled sons,
To thee is breathed a symphony
Amid the roaring guns:

"My mother dear, who nurtured me,
My lover, savior, friend,
My tender vision o'er the sea,
Be brave unto the end!

"The silent patriot art thou,
Who, smiling mid thy woe,
Gave freely forth thine all, and now
Face, head erect, the blow.

"From thee, my saintly hero, sprang
These ideals we shall save,
And thine is still the greater pang—
Be brave, beloved, be brave."

JOHNNIE'S LETTERS STAMPED "A X F"

By Winifred Black

KHAKI JOHNNIE is beginning to write home, and, dear me, how they do wait and hope, and long and pray for his letters.

Mother gets one every ten days or so. She passes it around after father has read it to the uncles and aunts and cousins. Little sister learns it by heart, and little brother copies it off to take to school and give to teacher to read aloud Friday afternoon at piece-speaking time.

The Girl of His Heart gets letters, too, and she waits and hopes and prays for the postman. But when her letters come she doesn't pass them around for everyone to read—not she! She reads little scraps of them aloud to her mother, and tells her father she had a letter from France, but most of what Khaki Johnnie writes she saves and carries around close to her heart all day, and at night she puts the letter under her pillow, and sometimes she cries over it.

Oh, it's a forlorn-looking little letter by the time she has had it two or three days! The ink has run, and it's crumpled, and beginning to wear out where she folds and unfolds it. She wouldn't let anyone take it away from her for anything on earth, the precious letter that has come so far across the sea.

Little Glimpses

She knows it all by heart, every word and every syllable of it, but that doesn't make any difference. She wants to look at it over and over again, and sometimes when it rains, or when the moon is very, very bright, and there is a silvery path on the water, and somebody is singing softly somewhere just far enough away, she sits at her window and looks out and wonders where he is, and whether he's thinking of her, and what she should do if he should never come home again, and then she decides that she will frame every one of his letters, or bind them into a book so that they can never be destroyed.

There were many interesting things in those letters, besides the messages that are straight from his heart to hers. Little stories about the other boys in the regiment, and things about the Tommies and the Sandies in their kilts, and the African Chasseurs, and the French Zouaves, and there is French in his letter, and new slang, and he talks about things he never knew much about before.

He goes to church now, it appears, and says his prayers and isn't ashamed to speak of it, and to ask her to pray for him, and he and the other fellows talk a good deal about what life means, and where it is all leading. And sometimes The Girl of His Heart feels as if she didn't really know him at all, he is so different, and so much older, and so much more serious, and so much wiser than she, than he ever was before, and she worries about it and wonders whether he will find her dull and old-fashioned and narrow when he gets back home. He is living ten years every day, and she is going on in the same old life she has always known. She wonders if he will grow away from her, and how she will seem to him when he returns, and that is one of the things that make her look so wistful sometimes when she has just read one of his new letters.

Dear girl, she needn't worry. He sees the French girls with their charm, and the English girls with their simple beauty and the Belgian girls with their pathetic appeal, but they, none of them, speak his language. He wants his own girl, the girl he knew when she sat in front of him at school when he used to braid a pencil in and out of her hair, and get kept after school for it, too.

Girl He Wants

He wants the girl who used to go skating with him without a thought of a chaperon. He wants the girl who knows what he means when he says, "Gee, that's fierce!" or "Some party!" He wants the girl of his own blood and his own race, and his own home, and he will come back to her heart-whole and fancy-free, never fear.
